Youth Orchestra Will Present Concert Friday

Ninth Annual Festival Program on Opera Field Will Feature American Music

Eighty young musicians, selected through extensive auditions as the most talented in this and neighboring states, will be heard this weekend in two concerts of the Seacoast Music Festival.

Held on the spacious Hobson estate at Little Boar's Head, a July 4 concert will place special emphasis on American music, including presentation of Victor Herbert's beloved "American Fantasia." The Friday concert marks the ninth year in which the estate and its music stage have set the scene for the Seacoast festival.

But for the first time in those nine years, one concert sponsored by the festival association will be held away from the sea-side opera field. On Sunday afternoon, July 6, the young musicians will pick up strings and brass in the presentation of a special program in the University of New Hampshire's field house.

In contrast to the concert last summer when professional artists from the music halls of New York were included for a few selections in the program, this year's festival will be entirely presented by youthful musicians.

But despite the lack of years of whom is but twenty-two and the youngest seventeen, they have gained favorable names for themselves in some of New England's better musical groups.

Two of the boy musicians are from New Hampshire. Robert Farr, seventeen-year-old pianist from Keene, was featured soloist with the Keene Orchestral society and the chorus of the New Hampshire Federation of Women's clubs. Nineteen-year-old cellist Robert Ripley of West Canaan, who has given numerous recitals throughout the New England states, has been heard with Dartmouth's Handel Society symphony, the Vermont State symphony, and the Prokofieff Society chamber orchestra. The youngster's talent was recognized by the Curtis institute when it granted a full scholarship for study next year at the Berkshire Music center.

The third soloist will be Bernard Chebot of Fall River, Mass., whose viola playing has been heard from the concert master's chair in the All New England high school orchestra, and the soloist's platform of the Metropolitan club. The twenty-two-year-old violinist has conducted grand opera for the American Concert association and has been heard with the Mozart Symphonietta of New York.

For the second season, the New Hampshire Youth orchestra will be under the baton of Bjornar Berge-thon.

First Dance At Beach Club

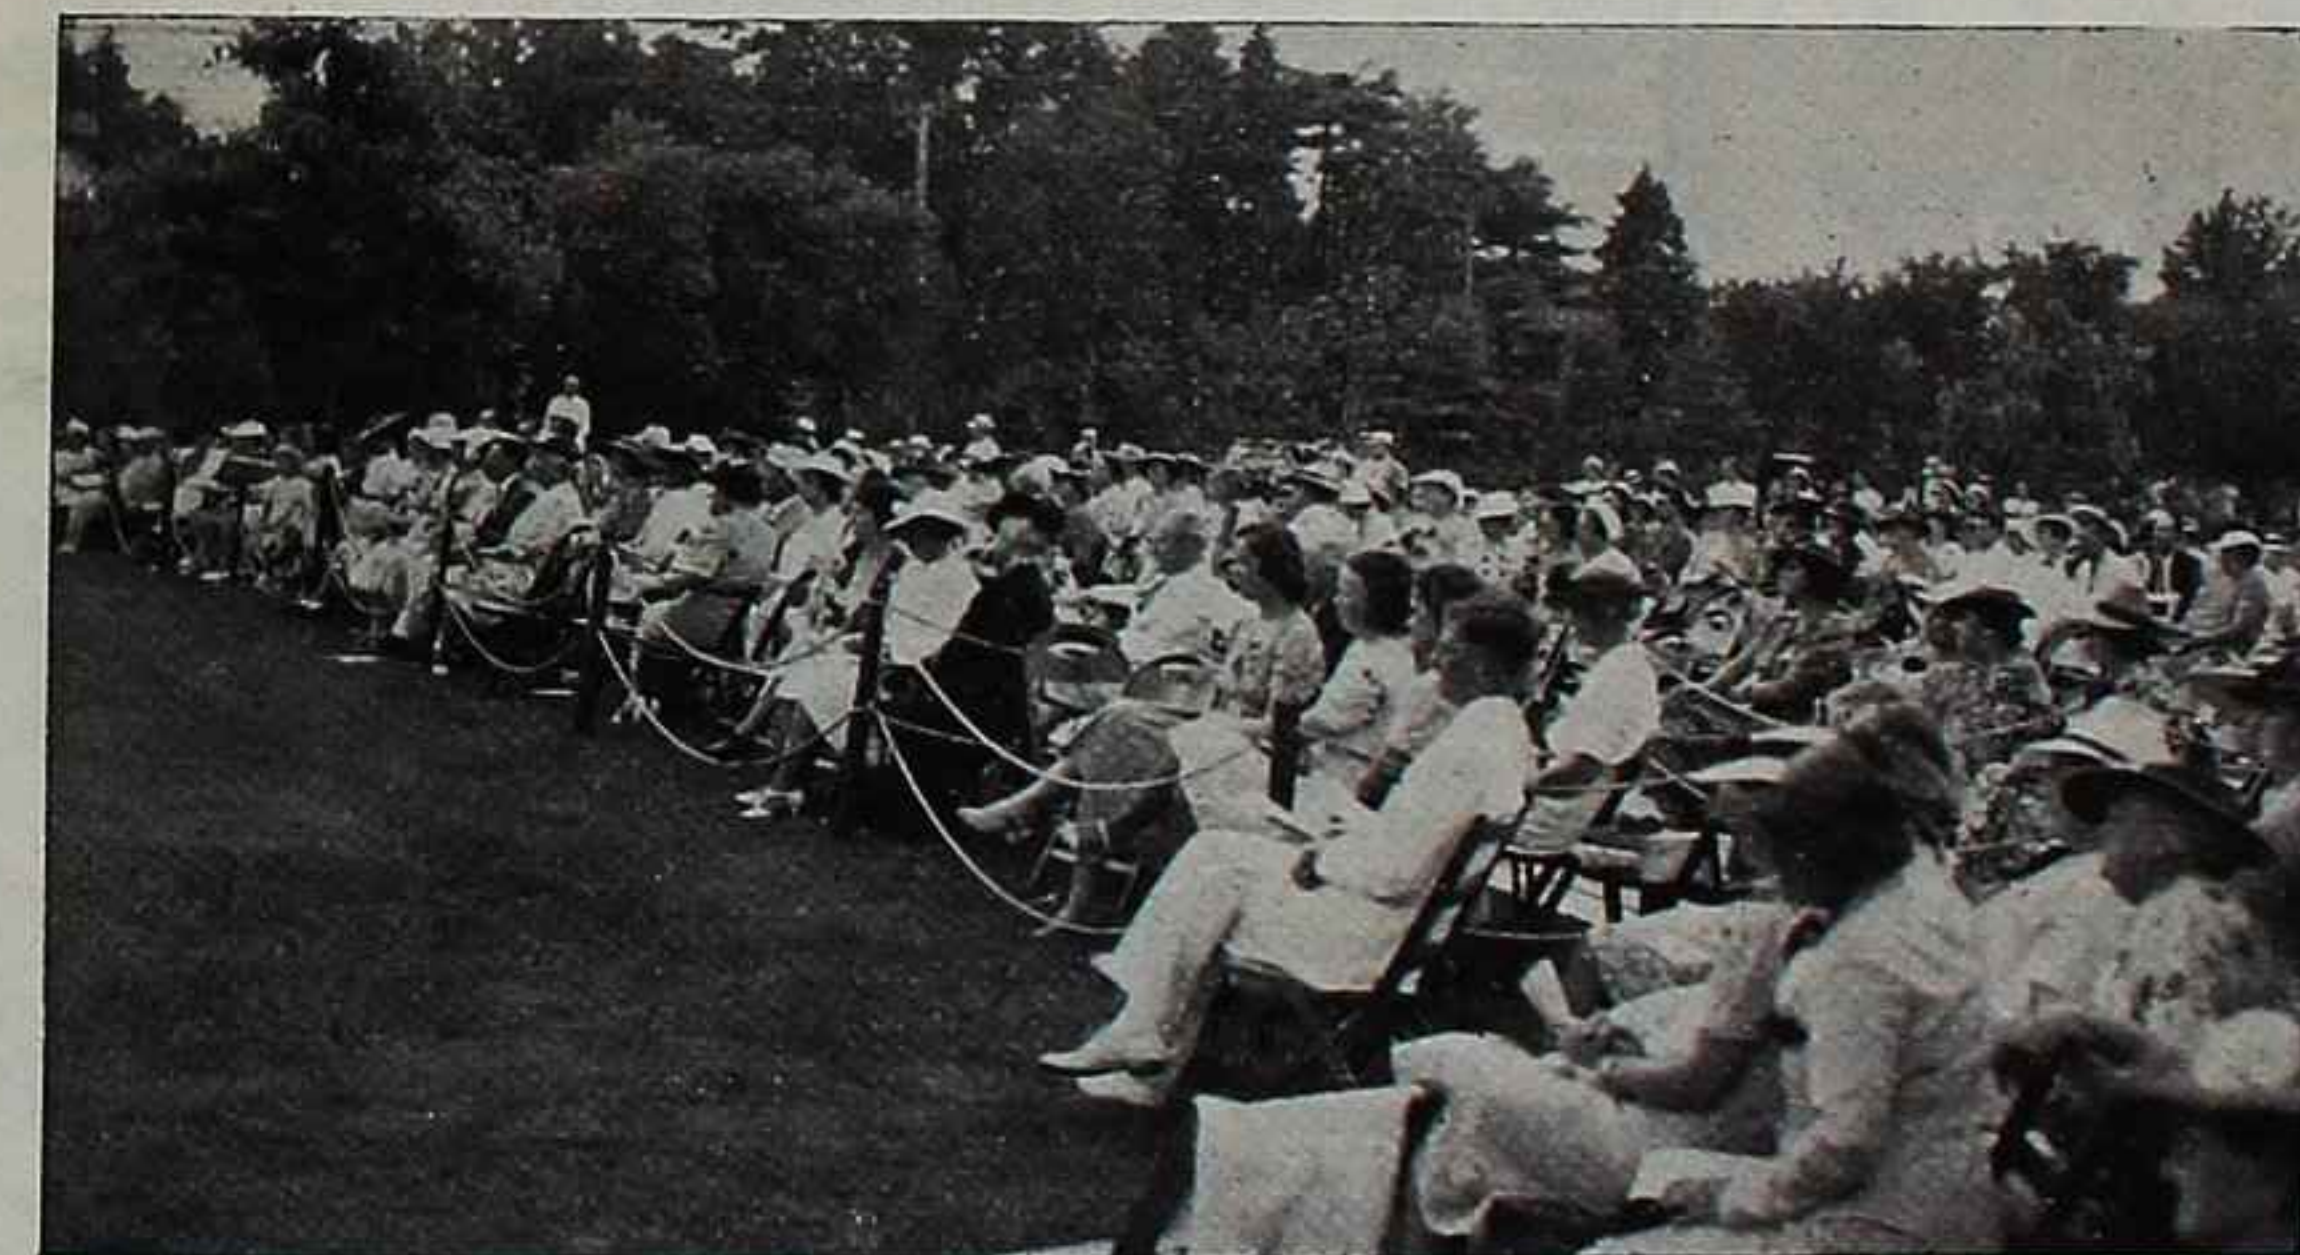

The Rye Beach Club will hold the first dance of this season on Saturday, July 5th. This will be a dinner dance, and Ken Reeves and his orchestra will furnish the music. Charlie Adams will again instruct classes in swimming and will be assisted this year by James Brown. Marie Cullen is secretary and is in charge of the shop at the club. More about the Beach club activities later.

New Poet Speaks For New England

"Flashing Wings" is the title that William Plummer Fowler of Little Boar's Head has given to his first volume of collected verse. The publication of his book is an event of real interest to poetry lovers, for it bids fair to place him at once among the important singers of the New England scene. The noted critic, Curtis Hidden Page, says of him, "He uses the exacting sonnet form with familiar ease. Especially, he sees with minute observation, and renders truly, the characteristic features of landscape and seascape along the short but varied and beautiful stretch of coast-line that is New Hampshire's sea-coast region."

William Fowler is a native of New Hampshire (his grandfather, Asa Fowler, was a Justice of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire) and, although he practices law in Boston, he maintains his home and extensive interest in his own state. He is chairman of both the Board of Commissioners and the Zoning Board in the Little Boar's Head District; and he is Governor of the Society of Colonial Wars. In his avocations he shows a Yankee versatility and energy. Along with a lifelong devotion to deep-sea fishing and sailing, he is an amateur farmer and an enthusiastic skier. Before becoming President of the Appalachian Mountain Club, he was chairman of its Committee on Skiing, and was then instrumental in acquiring the 600-acre Cardigan Ski Reservation at Alexandria, where he has spent much time cutting and clearing ski trails with axe and scythe. At Dartmouth, from which he graduated "magna cum laude" in 1921, he belonged to the Ski and Snowshoe Team, and won many snowshoe races.

Through all his outdoor hobbies, Mr. Fowler has learned to understand and love every aspect and mood of the New Hampshire countryside. He writes of many beloved landmarks: Sar Island, Fox Hill Point, and Godfrey's Ledge; of the Hampton Marshes, the fish houses at Little Boar's Head, and the cliffs of Rockport.

APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE of past years as they listened to well known guest artists and orchestras that have taken part in the annual New Hampshire Seacoast Music Festivals on the beautiful opera field of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Hobson.

Beach Chamber Of Commerce Against Liquor Licenses

At the annual meeting of the Hampton Beach Chamber of Commerce on June 17th, it was unanimously voted to oppose the granting of any liquor licenses at Hampton Beach. The resolution was proposed by one of the directors, and it was not only unanimously seconded, but unanimously approved. It was also decided to assist the Hampton Beach Yacht Club in a drive for new members. The Yacht Club is one of the attractions at Hampton Beach, and members of the Chamber of Commerce are being asked not only to join this club as members, but to explain the advantages of belonging to the Yacht Club to the visitors and hotel guests, and to invite them to join. A Chowder Party will be given at the Yacht Club shortly.

At the meeting, the following were elected directors of the Hampton Beach Chamber of Commerce: John C. Percival, George Ashworth, Charles F. Butler, Ray Goding, Harry E. Hewitt, Kenneth Ross, Ralph Moulton, Douglas Hunter, Armas Guyon, Paul Hromoda, Al Daigle, John J. Walsh, Al Randall, Joseph Hurley, Jr., Edmund Langley, James A. Dineen, C. Lester Ford, John E. Legion Plans Bonfire For Gala Fourth

Again this year the American Legion will sponsor a huge bonfire for the annual patriotic night before the Fourth observance at Tuck Field which will be preceded with a concert by the Hampton Beach band.

Legionnaires will have only three days following their return from the Legion convention at Keene, N. H., to prepare for the bonfire and will need assistance in gathering materials. Anyone who is interested in transporting or furnishing materials should communicate with the committee in charge: William P. Stickney, Henry Fleming, Joseph Ferguson, Charles Davis, Reginald Grenier, James Eastman and Clifford Bean.

County Women At Outing Plan Camp

The county women's meeting at "Green Gate" in Exeter June 25 attracted over 150 women, representing almost every town in the county and an excellent program was carried out.

This is the fourth county get-together of rural women, at which they bring their lunch and have a social get-together during the noon hour, followed by a program of entertainment and speakers.

Principal speaker was Rev. Harold Bentley of Derry, who spoke on "This Changing World." Mrs. Abbie Sargent of Bedford spoke on "What the Farm Bureau is Doing for Rural Women." Miss Elizabeth Ellis, nutrition specialist at Durham, spoke on "Nutrition and Defense," and Mrs. Dorothy Sargent of Danville, who has been appointed chairman of the Rockingham county women's camp, told of plans for this annual event. Camp will be at the Hotel Harrington at Rye North Beach, beginning Tuesday, September 2. She also spoke on the tentative program. Entertainment included several selections on the piano accordion which, were given by Bradley Long of Portsmouth.

The committee in charge of this program were Mrs. Walter Tenney of Chester, new county chairman; Mrs. Dorothy Sargent, Danville, who is camp chairman, and Anita Babb, county home demonstration agent.

Advance Warning On Holiday Driving

CONCORD, June 26—WITH the Fourth of July holiday week-end a week away, State Motor Vehicle Commissioner John F. Griffin cautions drivers to prepare for dangerous traffic conditions if they are planning trips.

A bulletin from Mr. Griffin's office follows: "If you are going anywhere, you can expect others to be doing the same thing. To hurry will avail you nothing. Do not cut out of line in heavy traffic. With these thoughts in mind, plan your trip with plenty of time to spare. It is better to come home safe than to wind up in a hospital."

Communications and Items from readers are welcome at all times.

Summer Again . . .

And most naturally the New Hampshire coast again! For in spite of rampaging wars, defense production and a hard winter, the sun goes on shining and the water rolling in along the shore. We want to take this opportunity to welcome each and every vacationist back for another season.

Our task of publishing an interesting summer weekly is, of course, not as important as trying to balance the budget, or recarving the European map—but we hope to be more successful at what we do attempt.

This year we hope for more names, more pictures, more fun in order to enhance, in however trivial a fashion, your summer vacation. We hope that you will consider this news magazine as being in a sense "yours" and that you will send us news items, criticisms or suggestions.

Happy summer to you all!

The Cover . . .

The cover design this week was sketched especially for us by that popular young local artist "Bob" Naves of Mill Road, Hampton. "Bob" had the misfortune during the winter months of having his studio completely destroyed by fire and he received severe burns about the face and hands.

But it's an ill wind that blows nobody good and now the Naves (for his wife, Janice Newton Naves, is an artist in her own right) have a fine modern studio and are all ready to start their summer courses in art.

and Miss Madeline Cushman of Winchester, Mass., have opened "Rye Gate" for the summer.

The regular early morning mass is conducted every Sunday morning at 6:30 in the Community Hall—it's the Rye Beach post office—confessions are heard, and communion is given.

Mrs. M. H. Hadow of Cleveland, Ohio, and Marion, Mass. formerly of London, was a week-end guest at Green Gables, the home of Ewing Hill, Rye Beach.

Oh, Oh, Oh Bill entered a telephone booth and asked for "Double two, double two." "Two, two, two, two," replied the operator reproachfully. "All right," sighed Bill, "but get the number first and we'll play train afterwards."

Children's Day To Be Held July 17

The annual Hampton Beach Children's Day will be held Thursday, July 17th, sponsored by the Hampton Beach Precinct with a parade of floats, decorated machines and the sections of decorated baby carriages and children in costume. From Lowell, the attractive St. Rita's band, from Methuen the high school band and the N. H. State WPA band will all be here for the day, the WPA band giving several concerts from the veranda of the Ashworth Hotel where they will make their headquarters.

Col. George Ashworth, chairman of the Precinct Commissioners, invites all the townspeople to participate either by a float or decorated machine in those sections or by having your child in some section of the children's part of the parade.

He also calls attention to the annual camp of the N. H. Boy Scouts from July 14th-19 at the State Reservation by the Hampton River, where Camp Ashworth will again be set up and where visitors will be welcome to inspect the camp and see how it is conducted. Visiting hours, times of various contests and the great feature of the week, Boy Scout Day with its attractive parade will be fully stated in the newspapers in advance.

With perfect July weather forecast for this coming week-end, beach merchants are looking forward to one of the largest crowds ever to visit Hampton Beach.

It is estimated that a probable 100,000 visitors will take advantage of the long week-end afforded them by the Fourth falling on Friday to enjoy the gala program planned by the Chamber of Commerce to celebrate the national holiday.

According to a statement made today by Robert H. Spear, secretary of the Hampton Beach Chamber of Commerce, the number of inquiries received to date regarding hotel and guest house accommodations had shown an increase of 37½ percent over the last year.

Based on this showing, it is not hard to believe but that Hampton Beach will be looking forward to one of the biggest seasons in its history when it officially opens this week-end.

Robert Taylor At Ioka

Riding the Western ranges, Robert Taylor presents a romantic, swashbuckling figure in "Billy the Kid," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's gripping story of a Western Robin Hood, coming to the Ioka Theatre, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, July 6, 7, and 8. Depicted in Technicolor which presents picturesque locations in the pioneer West in their full beauty, the picture is a smashing adventure tale, one of the most ambitious in many a season.

The story deals with a bandit who is engaged to help a gang who are robbing and oppressing ranchers. Because of his code never to fire on an unarmed man the Kid befriends an English settler and comes to love his sister, who is engaged to the ranch foreman, a boyhood friend.

The bandit turns on his employers, ranges himself on the side of the ranchers, and prepares to take the law into his own hands amid numerous thrilling encounters, and escapes from jail and other thrills. The dramatic climax, in which he gives his life for his friend, is one of the most thrilling episodes in Western literature.

David Miller directed the picture, with a cast that includes Brian Donley, Ian Hunter, Mary Howard, Gene Lockhart, Lon Chaney, Jr., Henry O'Neill, Connie Gilchrist, Chill Wills, Guinn Williams, Mitchell Lewis and many others.

What's that? asked his friend.
"Well, my wife is away, so I made a pie for myself."
"A bit long, ain't it?"
"Of course it's long. It's rhu-barb."

Jane Withers At The Olympia

The twin-hit screen program coming to the Olympia Theatre in Portsmouth on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of next week presents an unusual combination of wholesome, rib-tickling comedy and thrilling adventure on the high seas. Heading this special three-day show is the new Jane Withers hit, "A Very Young Lady," which provides the popular comedienne with a grown-up role without losing any of the young star's delightful comedy talents. The co-attraction is the exciting screen version of the famous Jack London story, "The Sea Wolf", starring Edward G. Robinson, Ida Lupino and John Garfield. This film is all ready rated as one of the ten best motion pictures of the year and is an attraction that should not be missed.

Don Ameche At The Colonial

A breakfast lasting eight days and consisting of 128 eggs, seventy-nine slices of bacon, and a mountain of toast formed an important sequence in the 20th Century-Fox Technicolor musical, "Moon Over Miami," featuring Don Ameche, Betty Grable, and Robert Cummings.

The script required that Betty consume a major portion of the gargantuan feast. Don and Bob, and Carole Landis, who is also featured, were only required to be present from time to time, but Betty was at the table continuously—and actually eating, not just acting as though she was!

As a result, she can't stand the sight of an egg, the aroma of bacon, or the taste of toast.

Others who appear in "Moon Over Miami," coming Sunday to the Colonial Theatre, are Charlotte Greenwood, Jack Haley and Cobina Wright, Jr.

HOUSE and HOME

Summer beds are lovely dressed in patchwork quilts. Pine and maple look best at any time in this garb and in summer walnut and mahogany lean toward patchwork and applique in place of their more elaborate spreads. Crocheted and knitted spreads are attractive, too, and if you haven't one the work is nice to pick up at odd minutes between Red Cross knitting and sewing. Most of these spreads are made in blocks and then crocheted together so it's easy work to carry with you. Summer needle work should be chosen with the thought of its ease of accomplishment and its suitability to carry with you from porch to garden.

Since it's sandwich time with a vengeance now that "summer is a'cummin'" be sure your knife is sharp and that the butter is creamed before you start to make a batch of sandwiches for a picnic or tea. The quickest way to cream butter just out of the refrigerator is to put it in a bowl and work it with the pastry blender. Try it and see if you don't have butter the right consistency for spreading in no time.

It pays to use a certain amount of care when you cut flowers for the house. Otherwise the blossoms soon become limp and give little satisfaction.

The ideal time to pick them is early in the morning before the heat of the day has taken the moisture from stems and leaves. Take a small pail of water to the garden with you and plunge the stems into it as soon as they are cut from the plant. Always make a clean, slanting cut, using a knife for hard stalks such as roses and scissors for slender, soft stems.

Milky stemmed plants need sealing so sear the cut ends in a flame before you arrange them in a bouquet.

Hard stemmed flowers should be crushed by pounding the stem ends so that they drink up water more readily. Chrysanthemums, stock and annual asters as well as blossoming shrubs and roses respond to this treatment.

Fleshy leaved types such as calandulas and snapdragons need at least 12 hours in deep cool water in a dark place before arranging.

After your bouquet is arranged keep it out of a draft and also out of the sun. If you really want to keep your flowers in good condition for several days you will take the trouble to cut their stems every day and change the water daily. At night put the vases in as cool a place as possible.

Consulates Close

On order of state department all German consulates in the U. S. will be closed by July 10 because of "improper" activities by some of the Nazi agents. Here a police officer guards the Nazis' consul office in New York city.

The Post revue, presented by the 22nd Coast Artillery, last Friday evening in Constitution theatre, was very well received, and proved a great success. Colonel Walter K. Dunn gave an opening address in which he dedicated the theatre to the pleasure of the soldiers. An outstanding performance was given by the Soldiers' Glee Club, from the Boston Corps Area Headquarters detachment of the Boston Army Base.

Also, a group of boys from the medical corps of Camp Langdon hospital brought the house down with an Hawaiian number, and had to give an encore when Pvt. John McVeigh showed the audience that not all the hula-hula dancers live in Hawaii.

Much credit is due Mr. Walter Clegg, director of the Great Island Players, and Lieut. Earle Hand for the success of the revue.

Extensive repairs are being done on Mr. Howard Gardella's house at the corner of Main and Walbach streets. This means that in time to come, there will be another beauty spot in the island town. To name a few of these show-places, there is Mr. Linwood Davis' place on Walbach St.; Mr. J. Ben Hart's place on Walbach St. and the place of George H. Warren of Manchester at the corner of Main St., and Wentworth Ave.

When the new bridge is built and opened across the Hampton river, it will mark another interval of time and history in a section which has been particularly susceptible to change. From the draw of the new bridge, looking west about 300 feet away just before the Mile-long bridge was built stood the house of William Locke's father and looking seaward, the shore line ran irregularly southeast to where until two years ago the Frank Beckman house was located with the White Rocks forming the south end of this strip of land while a bit to the west of the present end of the Mile-long bridge a branch of the river cut through the sand north-easterly and entered the ocean about at Bradford or Atlantic avenues' present ends. This northerly branch of the river was only filled when the tide had made some progress towards being high at which time it made the section an island and from the only prominent characteristic the White Rocks Ledge, it received the name of White Rocks Island. This was in 1900.

Going back forty years earlier to 1860, this same area was under water except at each low tide a part of it would be visible. On the shore line, the ocean storms were making slight constant changes, but when in the 1880's the jetties were built at the mouth of the Merrimack river, or because a change had been going on but no record had been kept of it and it was unnoticed until this time, the sand gradually began to be deposited by the ocean currents and the so-called White Rocks Island came into being as it was in 1900. Sometime in the 1890's a severe storm in one night filled up this northern branch of the river and then in the fall of 1912, a storm caused the river to shift its course cutting through to the north where it now goes out and leaving the Beckman house on an island which was gradually joined to the north end of Seabrook Beach as that beach continued to build out to the north and east.

In the first decade following the opening of the Mile-long bridge, White Rock Island, or White Island as it became abbreviated to, had a larger number of cottages than the rest of the beach. The lettered streets from the Ashworth hotel south, were unsurfaced and ungraded, and for a time the streets had a varied appearance with a house on one lot set on the natural level, and the next house on more or less of a fill. And still today when there is a heavy rain, the water pours down A, B and C streets like small rivers and to a lesser extent down D street. The section within the loop made by Marsh avenue and the Ocean Boulevard was leased by the town in 1898 to the Hampton Beach Improvement company for 99 years.

There is another story of how the name "White Island" or "White Island" came into use. Somewhere between seventy and a hundred years ago, in a driving northeast storm a ship was wrecked here and Captain White, the master remained by the boat, took his torn sails ashore and made a tent while the storm continued and when it cleared away, repaired the sails, collected his cargo of lumber as much as possible and then, this done, sailed away, but left his name attached to the spot which many had visited while sails and boat were being repaired. An actual record which seems to fit this story, says that the captain's name is not given is the casting ashore at this point of the schooner E. M. Bronson in the great storm of June 5, 1872 when all along the coast, wrecks were strewn by the gale. The Bronson, passing just off Great Boar's Head on the second day of the storm and making every effort to beat out the trap formed in this kind of a storm by the curved coast between Portsmouth and Cape Ann, had her sails split in pieces and was unmanageable. She was driven among the shoals at the entrance to the Hampton river which was then entering the sea by a channel with Bound Rock near its center on the south and another channel nearly a mile north. With the waves sweeping over the vessel and threatening to carry the four members of the crew into a sea which seemed impossible for a small boat to live in, the crew lashed themselves to the masts and awaited their doom. But the currents were kinder than they had any hope for and although the schooner was given poundings and hard usage as it passed over and among the ledges, it finally worked nearer the shore where a part of the fury of the waves were in their smashing against the ledges and the plight of the vessel being seen from the shore, Sewall B. Walton, John Boyd, Lowell Boyd and John Felch heroically made their way in a small boat to their aid. Helped by the protection of the schooner itself, they reached the Bronson

Youth Orchestra To Give Concert Friday

and then heavily loaded by the added four members of the crew returned safely to shore. Here the shipwrecked men were given shelter and the next day, the storm abating, they began to see what could be done with their boat and cargo, the boat only seven years old and neither boat or cargo carrying insurance. The deckload of lumber and the sails were blown ashore and the men salvaged much of this. Then making a camp on the island in the river, they set to work to fix up their vessel. This was accomplished in a week or so, other repairs being needed which could not be made while the boat was in the rivermouth. The tug Mattie Sargent running between Newburyport and Haverhill was secured to tow the Bronson to Newburyport where she could be run on ways and repaired. The crew of the tug not being familiar with the Hampton river, John Felch of Hampton who had been winter fishing off this shore for 43 years and farming during the summers piloted the tug along the winding channel. Of the forty boats engaged in fishing from Hampton when Mr. Felch started, his was the only one then continuing. Because of the pounding the Bronson had received and the damage to her hull, it had been necessary to buoy her up with empty kevosene barrels and pump considerable water from her. A large number of people made the excursion on the tug to see the Bronson brought to the marine railway at Newburyport and it seems probable that the story of the affair and the grit of the captain and caused his name to be given to the stretch of name to be given to the stretch of name to be given to that time had been known only as the island. Thus a plausible story of the existence of the name "White Island" or "White's Island" is now given in detail for the first time.

A story which is quite plainly fanciful, but which probably goes back to the 1880's got its base from the same island formation and quite possibly its inspiration from no less person than Celia Thaxter who had written from her long experience with living on the Isles of Shoals had written a most interesting account of them in "Among the Isles of Shoals" in which she tells of "... the islands which go to sea in fair weather and come ashore in foul." At any rate, this stretch of sand which was an island at the mouth of the river at low tide and was invisible at high tide was a popular place for bathers and children and because whirling currents and eddies were perhaps responsible for higher mounds of sands in places, came the names, "The Isle of Knolls", the "Island That Comes and Goes," and other titles and the fanciful story of the children who sailed to sea one night on this island as it left on its regular twice a day schedule to visit the Isles of Shoals and their meeting with the various personages of local history and legend in a trip that has apparently never been repeated or at least never since recorded.

It was in this spot or somewhere near, according to local tradition, that the "Tent of the Beach" of whose occupants and stories Whittier has left such an interesting tale, was located in that summer of near eighty years ago. And back so far that it almost stuns one to think of it, 940 odd years ago, out of this rivermouth paddled a small fleet of canoes filled with infuriated Indians to give battle to a boat filled with strange adventurers and of all their arrows, only one to make a fatal hit, that under the shoulder of the leader of the invaders himself, who shortly dying was buried on the shore near Great Boar's Head—Thorvald, brother of Leif Ericson, discoverer of America, and son of Eric the Red. His grave local tradition claims to be under the marked stone a few hundred yards west of the sea.

Few places along the New England coast are more storied, and none date further back in the annals of time with their tales.

SEACOAST REGIONAL —

on "Fresh Water Anadromous." There are timely subjects in view of the action of the 1941 Legislature in authorizing the State Planning and Development Commission to make a study of Great Bay and make a report to the 1943 Legislature. The Biological Institute of the University under the direction of Chairman Jackson working in conjunction with the Planning Board, will make an intensive research of the fisheries industry of the Bay and shore line of the state.

A potential million dollar industry has been neglected. A few years ago, in the town of Seabrook alone, the clam industry was worth $150,000.00 to $200,000.00 yearly on clam flats of 150 acres, but today a legal size clam is hard to find and only a meager living can be made by diggers.

It is estimated that there are over 1000 acres of clam beds in Great Bay and the shore line of the state. These are potential assets to the state and to the people of this region. Only research will determine how to make these acres productive and the manner by which they may be maintained.

An interesting preliminary survey has been made by Mr. Jackson and Mr. Warfel. This has been published by the Regional Association and copies may be obtained from the Secretary or President.

State Bathhouse Staff Is Reduced

The state bathhouse opened this week for the season with a greatly reduced staff as a step toward more economical operation. The outing of 350 Manchester orphans Wednesday was the first large outing.

Austin J. McCaffery, headmaster of Newmarket High school, is again the superintendent. George Quinn of Concord, is returning as life-guard and will also be in charge of the first aid room instead of a registered nurse as in other years. Kenneth Creighton, formerly of Hampton, will be the other guard.

Miss Catherine Hughes of Manchester and Lionel Carbonneau of Exeter have been at the bathhouse since it opened. The staff also includes Stuart T. Carter, Hampton; John Evans and Miss Doris Trafton Portsmouth; James Thomson, Exeter; Allan Walker and Lawrence Ellis, Hampton.

Maj. Everett A. Moses that due to illness he will be unable to open the season as conductor of the famous concert band and it is likely that the ever popular "Hal" McDonnell will be the guest conductor. Bill Elliot, "the singing cop", has been engaged to sing every Wednesday and Sunday throughout the summer and will appear as a featured soloist every day during Carnival week.

The new illustrated folders of the beach have been received and will be sent out to each inquirer along with the attractive new edition of the Hotel and Guest House guide.

Mr. Spear points out that although reservations are way ahead of last year there are still plenty of cottages and rooms available and it would be wise for the vacationists to make their selection now.
