AROUND THE BEACH

Onmun Daymorn

10 o'clock sun warming my back with its rays. Dreaming on the sands. The sound of people walking by and children laughing is carried to me. Above it all I hear the voice on the microphone: "All right, everybody, up in back of the Chamber of Commerce building for your morning calisthenics. Come on!"

I take a sudden interest and debate with myself. The affirmative is the winner. Exercise is good for you, you need it, join those wise people. I fall in line, confident of my ability to do the exercises. I learn otherwise half-way through. Panting, I slip to the beach, recline and watch the others. I determine grimly that the morrow shall find me more hardened.

My name is called. Ginny is on the boardwalk gesturing to me. "We're going to play archery," she says. We jump into what Ginny claims on a sign attached to the back: "This may be a piece of junk out it's ahead of you!" We stop at Little Boar's Head filling station for some gas, and the attendant makes some nice comments on our pride and joy. Undisturbed we pass on. We're used to comments, and at least we're noticed.

The Sport Spot at last. We pile out and get our arrows and bow. The primitive comes out in me and I start war-whooping. Ginny silences me telling me to retain my dignity.

I omit in this account the number of times I struck the bull's eye. I'm just modest. (You'd be si'ent too, if your aim was like mine.)

"Ginny," I said as she dropped me off at the hotel. "I shan't be bowling this afternoon."

"Why?" she queries innocently. "Rest!" I almost screamed. "I need rest." The effects of the strenuous morning had at last caught up with me, and I limped up the stairs.

Red Cross Benefit To Be Held Aug. 22 - Sept. 6

Colonial Dames Hold Annual Garden Party At Portsmouth

Deal summer weather Friday afternoon favored the annual garden party held by the New Hampshire Society of Colonial Dames at the historic Moffatt Ladd house on Market street, Portsmouth.

Among those in the receiving line were Mrs. Charles Carpenter, Mrs. John G. M. Glessner of Littleton and Mrs. Gordon Woodbury of Bedford, honorary vice presidents, and Mrs. Norwin S. Bean of Manchester, corresponding secretary. Mrs. J. Franklin Robinson of Manchester was chairman of the hospitality committee and upward of 100 persons attended.

Mrs. Nancy Floyd and Miss Joan Jackson of Manchester presided at the punch table, while Mrs. Wallis Walker of Rye Beach, Mrs. Harriet Hall of Manchester and Miss Elizabeth Sawyer of Exeter poured. Assisting as waitresses were the Misses Mary and Gretchen Flannery, Mrs. Burne Pillsbury and Mrs. Betty Roberts of Manchester, Mrs. Georgia Goss and L. Woodworth Lane of Worcester.

The house and tables in the old English garden were most attractively decorated by Mrs. John L. Sullivan of Manchester. The flowers were from the Little Boar's head garden of the president, Mrs. Charles Bartlett Manning. In the coach house was an outstanding exhibit of early American glass by Mrs. Charles H. Batchelder of Portsmouth, a member of the board of managers of the society.

During the afternoon there was a program of symphony music by the orchestra from the Wentworth-by-the-Sea at New Castle under the direction of Robert Brunton.

Heading the committee on arrangements was Mrs. Harry E. Jackson of Manchester and Rye Beach. She was assisted by Mrs. Robert Burroughs, Mrs. Norman F. White, Mrs. John L. Sullivan, Mrs. Robert Flanders, Miss Mary S. Fuller and Mrs. T. J. Murray, Jr., all of Manchester, Mrs. C. Lane Goss of Worcester and Miss Jane James of Concord.

Miss Malvina Hoffman Will Show Her Works At Farragut

'Ten Minute Alibi' Current Attraction At The Playhouse

Of all the melodramas of violent crime which the stage has presented in the last ten years, one of the most engaging is "Ten Minute Alibi" which plays at the Farragut Playhouse at Rye Beach, N. H. this week (Tuesday, August 12th through Saturday, August 16th).

It seems to be the rule that most mystery plays should keep the audience in doubt as to the identity of the real murderer, but in "Ten Minute Alibi" its author, Mr. Anthony Armstrong defies this contention and the crime is committed before our eyes and not for one second do we entertain any doubts as to the identity of the guilty persons.

An exhibition of the works of Miss Malvina Hoffman, famous sculptress and painter will be held at the Farragut By-The-Sea during the latter part of this month for the benefit of the Hamptons' chapter of the Red Cross, it was learned today.

The opening date of the exhibition will be August 22 and will continue through Sept. 6.

The exhibition will consist of 33 pieces of sculpture by Miss Hoffman as well as 12 paintings of racial types painted on her five-year journey around the world and into the most distant and primitive lands for the Field Museum of Chicago.

Besides the sculpture and paintings there will be a group of ten statuettes of dancing figures from Bali, Indo China, India, Africa and other distant lands. The exhibition of paintings will depict all the stages of human evolution from the most primitive races existing today in the Malay jungles and Africa to the highest types including scholars, priests, musicians, etc. Miss Hoffman will display as evidence of the highest type of the human race her most recent portrait of Paderewski, which has never been shown anywhere before.

On August 27, there will be a showing of moving pictures in color and sound at the Farragut Playhouse of native dances around the world taken by Miss Hoffman on her tour. Another film made by Miss Louise Branch, showing all New Hampshire coastal activities and scenic high spots such as lobstering, clamming, rug hooking, wood carving, weaving and the great gladioli farm at Seabrook with a background of early American folk-songs and dance music, will be shown for the first time.

Another film the "Making of the World's Fair Fountain" and a lecture by Miss Hoffman will also be a part of this single day program.

In the afternoon a sale of food, fancy-work, aprons, candy, flowers and grabs took place. In the evening an entertainment took place presented under the direction of Mr. Walter Clegg. One of the highlights of the show was an Hawaiian number done by the "Singing Medics" dressed in grass skirts, with Miss Betty Larrabee as the feature doing a real Hawaiian dance. Another interesting act introduced Pvt. William Kourmpates as the muscle flexer. This was followed by a clever tap dance by Pvt. Medizjewski. Townspeople were again favored in having select pupils from the Emma Bildeau Smith School of Dance perform for them in real professional style. Sgt. John DiVito of Battery

B. was the Emcee for the evening and did vocal and saxophone selections between the acts. The military finale represented the Army, Navy and Marine corps, aided by the "Singing Medics," in uniform, singing two patriotic numbers, with Pvt. William Trostle as soloist. ## Yachtsmen Needed To Man Boats For Coastal Patrol

An appeal to New Hampshire yachtsmen who have had salt water experience, was made yesterday from headquarters of the First Naval district in Boston. The men are wanted to handle "numerous small ships which are being built or converted for patrol work along the New England coast."

The appeal reads: "A large number of officers and men are needed to man these patrol vessels, and it is believed that our yachtsmen have the spirit and the knowledge of the sea which make them a valuable source of seagoing material for such duty in the Naval Reserve."

Men between the ages of 17 and 50 are wanted for immediate active duty on vessels patrolling New England water. Those who, because of education, personality and experience at sea are considered qualified, will be given commissions in suitable rank in the Naval Reserve, for similar duties. Technically trained men are wanted for commissions in ordnance, engineering, ship construction and radio.

Requirements included citizenship, navy physical standards, parent's consent if a minor, and availability for immediate active duty for "duration." The navy reserves the right to send applicants anywhere intended for services in coastal waters.

Details may be had from the personnel officer, 150 Causeway street, Boston.

early Monday morning. Mr. Cram became ill on the evening of July 18 and the following day was taken to the Hale hospital, where he underwent a serious operation July 29. He had been improving and had hoped to leave the hospital soon. He was correspondent for several papers and wrote special stories for which he gathered historical facts in the libraries of this and the surrounding towns.

He had written special articles for the Hampton Tercentenary, and had much data that he had been collecting during the years he was a correspondent covering Hampton and the Hampton and Salisbury Beaches.

Mr. Cram began as a correspondent at Salisbury Beach more than 40 years ago and wrote articles for many of the biggest newspapers in the country. He was on the editorial staff of the Dedham Transfer for many years.

A native of Haverhill, Mass., Mr. Cram was born there Nov. 9, 1872 and had always lived there although for the past few years he had lived in Hampton working as correspondent for the Newburyport News and the Lawrence Evening Tribune.

Funeral services are being held this afternoon at the Dole and Childs Funeral home at 148 Main street, in Haverhill, Mass., and will be attended by representatives of the Hampton Kiwanis, the Men's Fellowship of the Hamptons, of which he was a member, and by members of the town and beach precincts.

He leaves one brother, Fred L. Cram, and several nieces and nephews, all of Haverhill, Mass.

Hundreds Forced To Seek Rooms In Town Saturday

It is reliably estimated that nearly 100,000 persons flocked to the beach over the past week-end taking transportation facilities and completely filling every available room and cottage on the beach.

Hundreds of visitors sought rooms in the town and were accommodated in private homes.

Robert H. Spear, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce urges all those who are coming to the beach to make their hotel or room reservations in advance so that they may not be disappointed or spend unnecessary time in searching for accommodations. He also urged all vacationists who have friends, whom they know are planning to come to Hampton Beach, to inform them of the great demand and help them find a place to stay.

It is safe to say that he present summer season is by far the most successful ever enjoyed at Hampton Beach.

Noted Guests Spend Week-End At Beach

Mr. Charles Vallee and William Lynch Vallee, father and brother of Rudy Vallee, famous orchestra leader, were guests at the Winona House on Church street over the past week-end.

It was here at Hampton Beach that Rudy played one of his biggest engagements back in the early 'thirties on his meteoric rise to fame. His brother, Bill, although not quite so famous, is a well-known writer in his own name.

Kiwanians Hold Outing At Beach

Joseph A. Frohock of St. Petersburg, Fla., was the guest speaker at the joint summer outing of the Kiwanis clubs in this region, held at the Ashworth hotel yesterday.

Kiwanians from Portsmouth, Hampton, Somersworth, Rochester, Farmington, Laconia, Manchester, Concord, Derry, and Nashua attended with the Dover club at the annual outing and ladies' night.

Following a banquet in the evening, Mr. Frohock showed pictures of the spring training camps of the Yankees and Cardinals and other movies of the St. Petersburg region. In addition there was music by an all-girl orchestra.

An enormous crowd last Sunday enjoyed the program of the Haverhill Male Singers between the band concerts with Hector Bessi, a tenor soloist for the afternoon. At the conclusion of the concert Master Goodreault, their director, was presented with a large bouquet on behalf of the men for her able leadership.

This week several new faces will greet summer visitors from the bandstand. Sunday afternoon at 3 P. M. Mary Bezemis of Peabody, Mass., New England champion baton twirler, will give an exhibition of her skill. Miss Bezemis appeared here Children's day as a feature attraction and gave a wonderful performance. Due to popular demand the Chamber of Commerce is bringing her back for another exhibition. Also Sunday afternoon Jackie O'Sullivan of Lawrence, Mass., one of Massachusetts' favorite boy sopranos, will give a short concert.

The following Sunday and Tuesday, August 17 and 19, Jackie Sullivan of Lowell, Mass., will take the place of Bill Elliot, "the Singing Cop," who is on his vacation. This Jackie Sullivan is also a well-known boy soprano, but who has appeared here many times before and is always a favorite.

Many entries have been received at the Chamber of Commerce for the annual swimming meet to be held here August 25 and it is expected that one of the largest fields of entrants ever will answer the starting gun. The beautiful trophies which will be awarded the winners of the four events are on display in the windows of the Exeter & Hampton Electric office.

On August 26-27 two special B&M

trains will bring hundreds of camera fans to the beach where shutters will click and flash bulbs explode in a two-day quest for unusual "shots", which will be entered in the Boston Post's annual $10,000 photo contest. Special buses will transport the fans between the station and the beach so that regular transportation facilities will not be jammed.

Plans are also underway and are being kept a secret for the time being, for the biggest celebration ever to be held during Labor Day week. This year the Chamber has done away with the title "Carnival Week", but instead is planning a stupendous Gala Week and Festival of Fun, which officials promise will be the "biggest thing ever".

This year regular bus schedules will be maintained throughout the whole week—something that has never been done before—in an effort to accommodate the thousands of visitors who will use these facilities.

Ginger Rogers At The Colonial

Her first picture since winning the Academy Award for the best actress of 1940 with her brilliant portrayal of the title role in "Kitty Foyle", Ginger Rogers will be seen in "Tom, Dick and Harry" at the Colonial Theatre, in Portsmouth, on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday next.

George Murphy, Alan Marshal and Burgess Meredith, three of Hollywood's foremost leading men, enact the roles indicated by the title. "Tom, Dick and Harry", which is described as a romantic comedy generously sprinkled with fantasy and hilarious situations, presents Ginger Rogers as a highly imaginative telephone operator who believes it is just as easy for a working girl to marry a rich man as a man in her own financial class. Because of her ideas, Ginger finds herself engaged at the same time to three charming fellows, each of whom has his good and bad points. However the showdown ultimately comes when each fiance demands a decision. How the impressionable heroine manages to extricate herself from her romantic dilemma, is said to lead to the delightfully amusing surprise-twist climax.

Guests Enjoy Hospitality Of "The Marilyn"

Jean Arthur At Ioka

The hectic and oft-times exciting lives of today's young people are woven into a gay, fantastic pattern for "The Devil and Miss Jones," Jean Arthur's latest starring vehicle coming to the Ioka Theatre Sunday and Monday, August 17 and 18.

Unique in its theme and incidents, the film presents its lovely star as a pretty clerk in a large New York emporium. Her life is like that of millions of other similar workers until her motherly in stinct prompts her to take under her wing a friendless old shoe clerk helplessly floundering in his newly acquired job.

When her aged protege suddenly turns out to be a multimillionaire who owns the establishment and who is posing as an employee merely to find out what is back of a revolt in the ranks of the employees, the story hits a merry pace.

Miss Arthur's romance with the young leader of the "rebels," the regeneration of the old impostor who soon sympathizes with the movement, and his own participation in a demonstration against his own tyrannical management lead to the sparkling climax of this gay offering.

Robert Cummings has the romantic lead, while Charles Coburn is seen as the ric tycoon. Other important roles are played by Edmund Gwenn, Spring Byington, S. Z. Sakail, and William Demarest.

Also included in the cast are Walter Kingsford, Montague Lovv, Richard Carle, Charles Waldron, Edwin Maxwell, Edward McNamara, Robert E. Keane, Florence Bates, Charles Irwin, Mat McHugh, Julie Warren, George Watts and Hlene Brewer.

Bowling Scores At The Ferncroft

Before a large crowd of bowling enthusiasts last Friday evening at the Ferncroft Alleys, Mr. Edgar Keith of Bangor, Me., Maine champion, and Mr. F. J. Klein of Portsmouth rolled a ten-string top by 91 pins.

Mr. Keith won his first championship on these alleys 18 years ago and says that they are just as good today. The match saw both bowlers converting bad "breaks" into sensational spares all through the ten strings.

At the conclusion of the first match, Paul Amazeen of Portsmouth and Del Webber of Kittery, Me., were paired against Keith and Klein in another ten-string match. Keith and Klein got away to an early lead and held it all the way through to the last two boxes of the last string when Webber came through with a strike and a spare on it to win the match by four pins. Amazeen had high total pinfall in this match with 1074 with Keith second with 1060.

Summary of the first match:

string	Keith	Klein
1	108	90

"Tillie" At Arcadia

Forty million "funnies" fun can't be wrong. And, if Hollywood reports are to be credited, those forty million fans aren't wrong—"Tillie the Toiler" is a honey if there ever was one!

In the film, which opens Sunday at the Arcadia Theatre and based upon Russ Westover's popular cartoon strip, "Tillie the Toiler" is the delightful heroine of one of the most enjoyable photoplays of the year, a down-to-earth story of human beings and, especially of a lovable young woman whose major interests in life naturally include dates and clothes.

Tillie herself is portrayed by lovely Kay Harris, a Cincinnati girl whose first screen break automatically hands her a star rating.

Noted Tenor Will Sing Sunday At Beach Church

Emanuel Mansfield, noted negro tenor, will sing at both morning and evening services of the Community Church next Sunday, August 17.

Mr. Mansfield has a voice of rare purity and rich quality which has thrilled thousands of listeners the country over and it is hoped that many here at Hampton will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing such gifted soloist.

Mr. Mansfield, a Virginian, eldest of eighteen children, was forced to sacrifice his schooling before completing the seventh grade to support the family, and four years of various occupations, such as stevedore, waiter, cook, railroad-ing, and fisherman, trudged back to school.

Substituting for his first singing teacher, Lessie Spurlock, at the 1926 convention of the National Association of Negro Musicians, Mr. Mansfield was recommended as soloist for one year's tour throughout Canada and the Mid-West for the Peerless Concert Company. In 1928 he entered Princess Anne College, earning his tuition as manager of the college quartet, which later won scholarships to Claflin college.

In 1932 this group turned professional and extended music studies in Boston, well known as the Mansfield Singers, with Mr. Mansfield as director and soloist. Upheavals abroad and results of the "1929 Crash" cancelled three European tours by the singers. Following this came two years' hospital confinement for Mr. Mansfield. During recuperation he continued the studies of business, typing, and languages via correspondence, and hobbies at poetry and song writing—all in bed—each of which has won prizes.

He is the founder of the present S. Coleridge-Taylor Music Association of Boston which brought the National Association of Negro Musicians' Convention to Boston for the first time in history, as well as reviving ambitions towards the interpretation of Negro Spirituals.

A singer whose personality and artistic interpretation of classics and Spirituals place him in the foremost ranks of his race, he is the pupil of Jessie Vose.

Former Barber At The Farragut Dead

Nathan J. Wiggin, Stratham, who for many years conducted a barber shop at the Portsmouth Athletic club and at the Farragut hotel, died recently at his ancestral home in Stratham. Known as the barber who frequently trimmed the locks of John Greenleaf Whittier, the poet, he once ran a shop in Amesbury.

A native of Stratham, he lived on the farm which has been handed down from father to son through nine generations. He was the ninth generation of Wiggins who lived on the Stratham farm which has been passed on without warranty deed. Capt. Thomas Wiggin, the common ancestor of the New Hampshire branch of that family, came from England in 1631 at the age of 17.

Nathan Wiggin started to learn the barber's trade in Manchester and finished training in Amesbury where he met Mr. Whittier. One of his prized possessions was the Whittier razor and at the Farragut during the latter years that he was there, his friends formed the John G. Whittier club. Each member was shaved once a year with the Whittier razor.

From 1882 until a few years ago he conducted the shop at the Farragut. He also has had shops in Exeter and Newfields, and during his travels in many parts of the country plied his trade in Boston, Florida and California during the winter months. He always returned to Rye Beach for his summer business.

An outstanding event in his life was the gift of a steel flagstaff which was placed on the grounds of his home by his friends from Rye. Nearly the whole town of Stratham turned out for the affair as did representatives of many towns throughout the country.

Mr. Wiggin was born March 24, 1852 the son of Hiram and Mary Wiggin. He attended the public schools and then began to study the trade which he followed throughout his life.

He married Miss Emma A. Gilman, Newfields, a direct descendant of former Governor Bradstreet Gilman. They observed their 64th wedding anniversary this February.

Oldest Jewelry
Shops In Country

Safford's Jewelry Shoppe has traditional connections, which probably makes it the oldest jewelry store in the United States, dating back previous to 1690 when the Moultons, as silversmiths, came to Newburyport from England. From then their business was handed down from father to son. In 1902 the late Mr. William Moulton took Mr. John E. Lunt as a partner and under the firm name of Moulton & Lunt continued until 1915 when Mr. Lunt bought out the Moulton interest and continued the business in the name of John E. Lunt until the store was taken over in 1937 by the present owner, Mr. Donald P. Safford. In 1870 Mr. William H. Safford, grandfather of the present owner, started in the jewelry business and took Mr. Lunt as partner in 1878, and under the name of Safford & Lunt continued until 1898, after which each carried on in separate establishments.

Mr. Donald P. Safford, the present proprietor of Safford's Jewelry Shoppe, is carrying on the business with the same spirit of honesty and fair dealings that has been the practice of this store for generations.

Glazer & Fox In New Location

Many women, in particular, and men, have made the remark that the Glazer & Fox Hardware and Plumbing Supply Company, now located opposite the Post Office in Portsmouth, is one of the nicest stores they have visited for some time.

When Earle Fox and Harold M. Glazer first formed the partnership of Glazer & Fox their aim was to serve the public so well as to enable them to open just such a fine store as is theirs in Portsmouth opposite the post office. Furthermore, Glazer & Fox will in their new store, be able to give the public even better service and a larger variety of merchandise.

From the time that Glazer & Fox became established their paint and wallpaper departments have been most widely patronized in this trading area. Bri-Mar Paint Products, a New England product for almost 100 years, are enjoying an enviable reputation for giving satisfaction.

In the wallpaper department you will find upwards of 150 patterns of the newest designs and colorings to select from. The Houseware and Appliance departments are much enlarged. Here you will enjoy seeing and handling many new kitchen gadgets, Pyrex Ware, Enameled Ware, Aluminum Ware, Copper and Iron Wares and many, many kitchen aids that lack of space does not permit to be listed. Glazer & Fox are agents for such nationally known products as Crosley refrigerators, Crosley Washing Machines, Crosley Gas and Electric Ranges, Duo Therm Automatic Hot Water Heaters, and Duo Therm Room Heaters with the sensational air-conditioning Power Air Unit.

The home owner, prospective home owner, and builder will like doing business with Glazer & Fox in plumbing, heating and electrical supplies and fixtures. On the main store floor there is on display a model kitchen and several model bathrooms. Roofing materials such as asphalt shingles, roofing paper, sheathing papers, zinc, sheet lead, etc., are an important part of the business of Glazer & Fox. The same can be said of masons' supplies such as heatilators, the pre-built fireplace, fireplace dampers etc. Mr. Fox and Mr. Glazer can justifiably state that theirs is the most complete hardware and plumbing supply store north of Boston and south of Portland serving the interests of the public as far south as Hampton and Hampton Beach.

"Appreciation Fund", recently created in his behalf, would have brought him if he had lived. But he had far more than that. He had a full measure of happiness and joy in the knowledge that men and women in this little community appreciated his character, his ability and his generous services in behalf of Hampton. When he learned the manner in which his friends were attempting to show their gratitude to him he said in his characteristically modest manner, "I've done nothing to merit this, but the spirit behind it all makes me more happy than any sum of money would make me" and he turned his head away to hide a tear which rolled down his cheek onto the pillow. The fund will be used for "Bill" but not in the manner originally intended.

The world is a much better place by reason of the life of "W. D.", as he was known to many of his younger friends. He had a brilliant mind which was hidden from many because of his innate modesty. He kept his love of boys and young folks in general, strictly to himself. But few knew of the inherent desire which he always had to assist boys who might have fewer privileges than the average. And he would have been the first to scoff at the idea that any homeless youngster, who could sit at his knee and learn something about nature and perhaps about the art of printing and certainly something about the Bible, was privileged even beyond many other boys who lived in homes of wealth and affluence.

"Bill's" character and life may be summed up in one word, "unselfish". He was a good printer, a painstaking reporter and a man who always treated his citizenship responsibilities seriously. He loved animals and among all of them that knew his step is a beautiful collie who will miss him sorely because when "Bill" even entered the yard or put his foot on the steps, the dog, sensing his approach, would bark frantically until he had an opportunity to almost knock "Bill" over in the enthusiasm of his hearty greeting.

"W. D." wanted nothing of life for himself. He asked for no opportunity to do something for somebody else. And he found chances for service which the average man would completely overlook. He loved Hampton and was an authority on the town's history. The community has him to thank for making a world-wide heroine out of that unique but historic character, Eunice "Goody" Cole.

Yes, "Bill" Cram has gone, but the enduring monument which he leaves behind is of a type which mark the lives of but few men, for his is the monument of happy and cherished memories which he himself erected in the hearts and in the minds of a host of friends and acquaintances. And while we may ourselves properly grieve at the breaking of a tie which bound us to an unforgettable character, there need be no mourning or sorrow for "Bill", because whatever there may be that is beautiful, good and everlasting in whatever existence follows this earthly one, must be especially reserved for the soul of such modest, clean, unselfish gentleman as "Bill" Cram. FARRAGUT PLAYERS —

Daring and thrilling is this most perfect of modern detective plays. The officers on the case relentlessly pursue every clue until the finger of guilt points inevitably at Colin Derwent. But Derwent is even more clever for he has established a unique and apparently unbeatable alibi. A pleasant twist at the end dismisses the theatre-goer in an excited frame of mind.

Director William R. Anderson has again scored a hit with his group of versatile young people at the Farragut Playhouse with this highly superior drama of murder which is warranted to delight all those who like their crimes tricky and tense. Cast in leading roles are Dean Thueson, popular star of "Nothing But The Truth", Stanley Whitehead, and Mary O'Neil. Other players include Edwin McLean, George McConville, Joseph Warren and Frederick Kidder.

For its next two plays the Farragut Playhouse has announced that it will present "The Flying Gerardos", a sprightly comedy about a zany family of acrobats written by Kenyon Nicholson and Charles Robinson and presented this year on Broadway. This play will hold forth at the Farragut from Tuesday, August 19th, through Saturday, August 23rd, and will feature Miss Barbara Boots.

Elmer Rice's great drama of international import, "Flight to the West" will be the attraction at the Farragut from August 26 to August 30th, announced Mr. Anderson. This play presents a cast of twenty persons and the entire action takes place aboard a Pan-American Clipper bound for America from Lisbon.

AROUND THE BEACH

Onmun Daymorn

Ginny was rattling the doorknob. "Come, get up!" she ordered. Cautiously, I opened one eye and glanced at the clock. Six A. M. Indignant, I turned around and uttered not a word. Let her rattle, I thought, let her rattle 'til doomsday. Fine time of day to be waking me up!

And then another voice came seeping to my ears. "Hey, it's me—remember? I once went to school with you." Sounded like Julia's voice. Couldn't be Julia, though Julia was in Hartford.

Both eyes were open now and I jumped up and opened the door. It was Julia. Enthusiastically, I bade her take a chair and pounced upon her with questions. "For how long are you here?" I asked.

"Just a day," she replied. "So come on, get ready and let's make the most of it."

It took me an hour and a half to get ready, a little longer time than usual. This was probably due to my search for a missing mate of the solitary pair of stockings in my possession, which search was constantly interrupted by our reminiscences of our class trip. "Remember, Julia, that night you leaned over the rail, a miserable case of seasickness?"

"Yes," she said. "I remember how there was no pity in your soul and you roared with laughter. But how about the time you were dancing on the ship and it rolled and you and your partner went skidding across the floor to land in a heap at the other end?"

It was my turn to blush. We breakfasted at Mahoney's about 8 o'clock and went in for a dip in the briny deep later. Refreshed, we donned our clothes, sat around and discussed our plans for the rest of the day. A trip to Marjorie Poore's in Bradford for a black and white dress for Ginny; a drive around the local country and beaches; dinner at Palmer's; a movie in the evening.

And the day swept by. Ginny found a sophisticated black dress at Marjorie Poore's that made her look, as Julia termed it, "Oomphy." It was cute.

Julia loved the seashore. "It's wonderful here," she said. "There's such a tangy breeze that blows in from the ocean."

Then on to Palmer's for the final touch of the day, a delicious lobster dinner. Julia just sighed, so complete was her satisfaction at the meal. And for Julia not to be verbose is as unusual as it is for me to be silent.

Even I was quiet, and content.
