Loses Control Of Car While Trying To Light Cigarette

Monday night at 5:30 P. M., Mrs. Eleanor M. Leavitt lost control of her car near Rudy's on Lafayette road and went off the road causing much damage to property but fortunately received no injuries.

Mrs. Leavitt was driving toward Portsmouth from Hampton Beach when she said that she lost control of the car while trying to light a cigarette. Her car struck a 12-foot by 12-foot girder, moved it considerable distance and then struck the car owned by Mr. R. A. Lefebvre, proprietor of Rudy's Cabins, which was parked in front of his house. Mr. Lefebvre's car was moved fifty feet by the impact and considerable damage was estimated.

Mrs. Leavitt's car was taken by wrecker to a garage. She is a resident of Eliot, Maine, and is vacationing at the Kay Cottage at Hampton Beach.

Chief of Police Jerome Harkness and Leavitt Magrath are making an investigation of the accident.

In an address to the Hampton Beach Chamber of Commerce and Hampton Beach Village Precinct before 400 people at the annual banquet held Tuesday, June 19, at the Ashworth hotel, Governor Charles M. Dale declared, "Recreation is one of the foremost businesses of New Hampshire."

Recreational inquiries up to last Friday received by the state publicity bureau were 17 percent higher than a year ago for the same period. The General Court, Dale added, has increased by 500 percent the funds to be used for recreational advertising for New Hampshire, has a vital interest in the well-being of Hampton Beach. Governor Dale suggested that as the French Riviera was a rest center for servicemen, so could Hampton Beach take care of weary servicemen in the same way.

Colonel George Ashworth extended his greetings for the Precinct and Raymond Goding, President of the Chamber of Commerce, stated that this summer season will be dedicated to the sale of war bonds.

Governor Maurice J. Tobin, who was present with his wife, brought greetings from Massachusetts. He

Reappointed

Charles E. Greenman, Great Boar's Head and Charles F. Adams, High street, were reappointed to state positions, Thursday, June 21.

At a session of Governor Charles M. Dale and the Executive Council last Thursday, which because of the load of pressing business was held a week after the special session at Glenciff, June 14, Charles E. Greenman was reappointed a member of the board of trustees of the State Industrial School at Manchester and Charles F. Adams was reappointed to membership on the New Hampshire Shore and Beach Preservation Commission.

When Struck By Auto Sunday

In an accident which occurred Sunday night at 11:10 P. M., James Garrity of Lowell, driving south on Ocean Boulevard, struck a sailor, Bodger Balanghetto, at the the corner of C Street.

Mr. Garrity immediately took Mr. Balanghetto to the police station. No medical attention was necessary for the leg bruise which the sailor received.

John Keefe and Leavitt Magrath of the Hampton Police force are investigating the case and will probably prefer charges against Garrity for excessive speed on the crowded boulevard.

READING & WRITING

BY Edwin Seaver AND Robin McKown

If you want to know what our soldiers read—and also what they write—get hold of "The Best From Yank," a collection of stories, sketches, photographs and cartoons that have appeared in the magazine, Yank.

"The Best From Yank" has a wide range of subject matter. There are grim battle accounts here: in the jungles of New Georgia and New Guinea in the earliest days of our war; on a bomber raid over Berlin; with a PT mission to the Philippines. There are descriptions of Burma behind the Japanese lines; Athens at the time of liberation; Marshal Tito's headquarters in Yugoslavia and the work of the Partisans there.

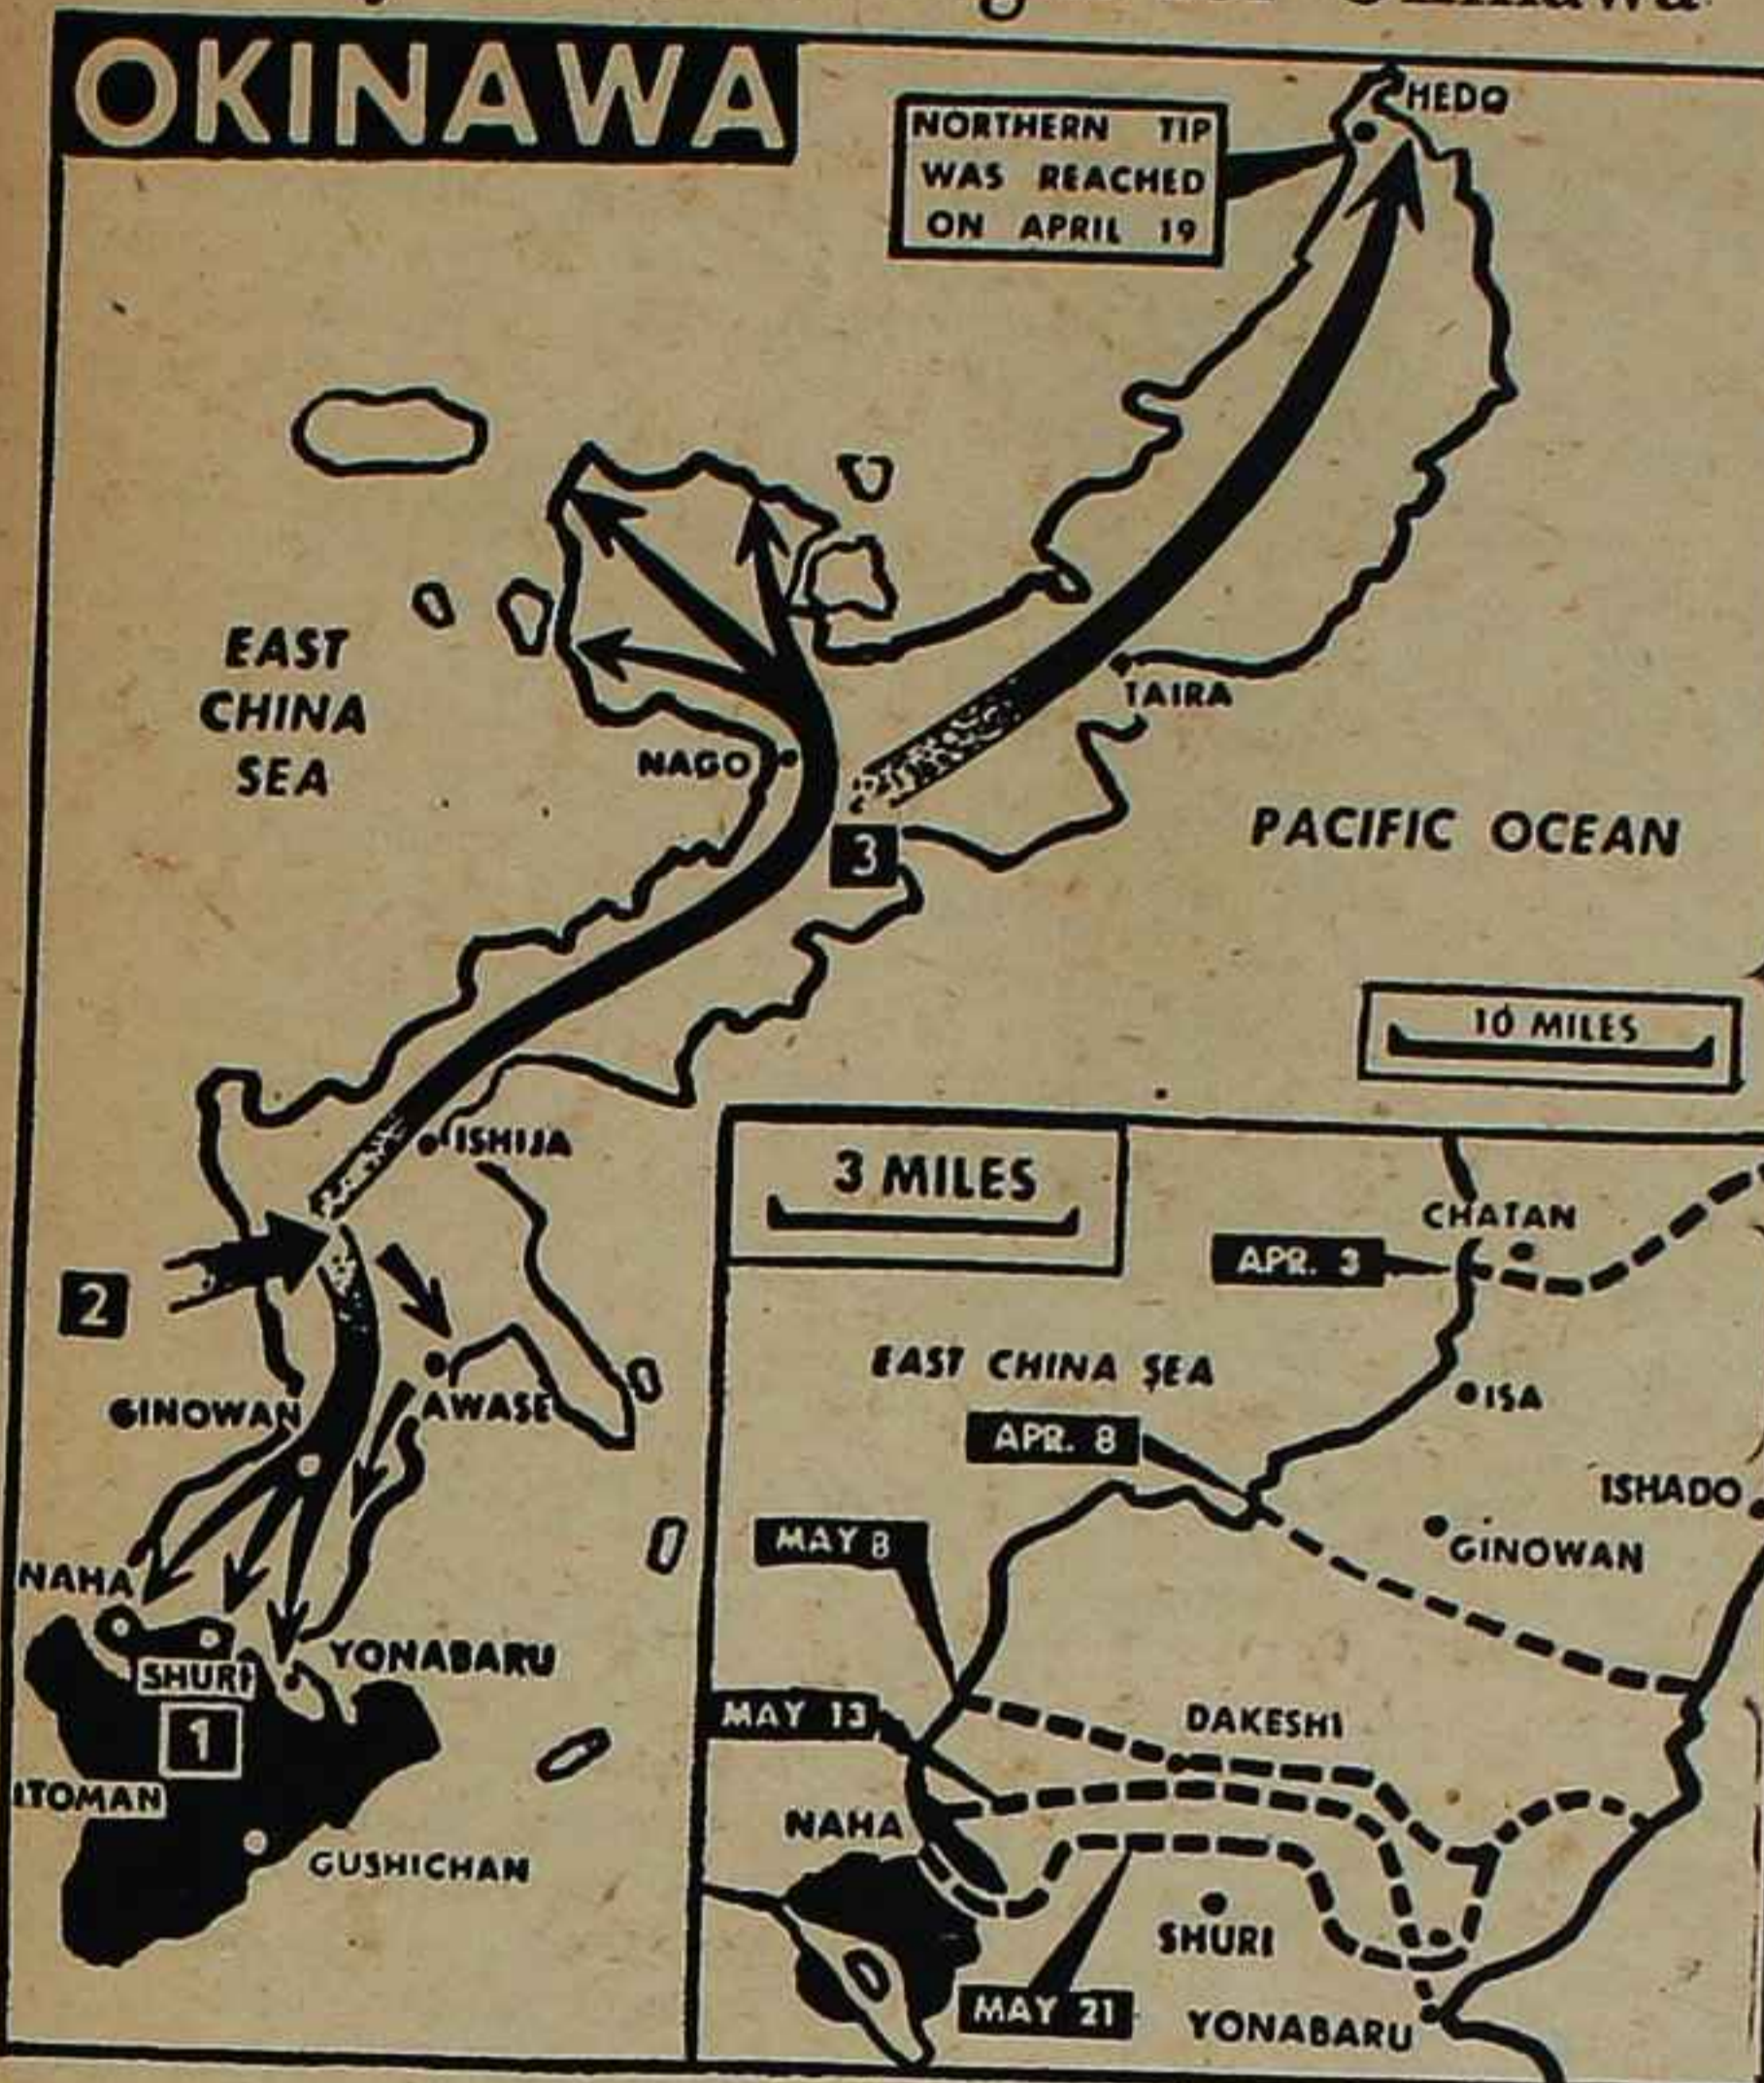

In more flippant moods, soldiers write about what it is like to be stationed in New York's Grand Central building, or "A GI Invades the Fashion Front." And cartoon creations, like Sgt. George Baker's "Sad Sack," reveal what are the common complaints of a soldier—and what he laughs at. There are many good stories, too, and exceptionally good poems. Quite a book!

Caruso didn't often talk about his art, says his wife, Dorothy Caruso, in her biography, "Enrico Caruso—His Life and Death." One exception, however, was when Carpentier, the French prize fighter, came to see him. "What did you talk about—fighting?" she asked afterwards. "No," he said. "Singing." "Does he want to sing?" "No. He wants to prize-fight." "Does he know anything about singing?" she pressed him. "Well," admitted Caruso, "he didn't when he came. But now, yes." Then he added thoughtfully, "I don't be very much interested in the prize fight."

Another musical anecdote from Bennett Cerf's "Try and Stop Me." A wealthy society dowager once demanded to know what Fritz Kreisler would charge to play at a private musicale. Five thousand dollars, he told her. She agreed reluctantly, but added, "Please remember that I do not expect you to mingle with the guests." "In that case, Madame," Kreisler assured her, "my fee will be only two thousand."

Story of Bitter Fight for Okinawa

As the terrific fighting on Okinawa drew toward its close America counted the price and found it high. Startling was the announcement of losses suffered by the navy off the island. Suicide attacks by Jap planes caused constant trouble for the U. S. fleet units attempting to supply the marines and army fighters on the island itself. High navy officials declared however that 99 per cent of the suicide planes were shot down before reaching their targets. Above map shows principal dates in the progress of the fighting for this important stepping stone to Japan.

Remnants of rice have been found in Neolithic pottery in China, dating probably from the end of the third millenium B. C.

One of the largest pieces, containing 2.2 acres with a 150-foot frontage, was purchased of Mrs. Warren J. Drew of Hampton, and another containing 2.1 acres with an 191.2 frontage was bought of Ralph A. Moulton, who has the privilege of moving the house now situated on the land. Another tract of 1.5 acres and a frontage of 85 feet was purchased from the Casino Associates who also will remove the building popularly known as the "Pollywog" at some future date. All of these three tracts run back into the marsh area at the present an undetermined distance. These bounds will be surveyed in the near future.

The largest single tract of undeveloped marsh land adjoining the above mentioned pieces and consisting of six acres was purchased of Alice Norton of Hampton while another parcel of approximately 1 acre and belonging to James W. Tucker, Jr., was taken by eminent domain proceedings. The purchase of the latter tract, although the smallest of the five was deemed necessary, according to Mr. Perkins, to join the whole area under consideration with another tract of approximately 4 acres already own-

The recently purchased land, together with land already owned gives the town an area of approximately 16.8 acres to develop into a large parking space which could accommodate an estimated 5,000 cars.

UNH Instructor To Aid Ceramics In Puerto Rico

Durham, N. H. June 20—Edwin Scheler, nationally known ceramist and instructor in arts at the University of New Hampshire, left today for Puerto Rico to take an active part in the ceramics program being developed there as part of a government plan to industrialize the island. On leave of absence from the university, he will be accompanied by his wife, Mary Scheler, who is also well known for her work in ceramics and puppetry.

This is not to be a pleasure trip but a year of hard work, according to the Scheiers who expect to reach their destination near San Juan in early July. While on the island, they will work with the Puerto Rican Development company established by the government when the island's economic problem of dense and rapidly increasing population, insufficient land, and widespread unemployment made industrialization seem the best solution.

Through a ceramics design laboratory, one of the many new industries using native workers and native materials, Edwin and Mary Scheler, will originate designs which can be reproduced on a large scale. These designs will be kept practical and fitted to everyday needs, and will include bottles, decorated tiles, plumbing fixtures, and dishes. The purpose of the program will be to provide goods in order to lower the heavy imports now necessary, and to provide employment for a population where one out of three employable persons are now out of work.

Winners Of Ten Out Of Eleven Ball Games This Year

The Buccaneers of Hampton High school, winners of ten out of eleven scheduled ball games this season, have laid claim to the Southern New Hampshire title.

Amassing a total of 94 runs to their opponents' 37, the team rolled over all opposition except one contest with Exeter High.

Hampton was coached for the greater part of the season by Wes Root, who recently was inducted into the service. Coach Root has turned out some excellent ball clubs in his stay in Hampton and climaxed his brief career with one of the finest clubs in the state.

The Buccaneers boast of six men with batting averages of over three hundred, three of which were over four hundred. On a whole, the average team batting was .360, a mark to be envied by any high school club.

Following Coach Root's induction into the service, Chick Oleson took over the reins and piloted the club the final three weeks of the season.

Exeter, the only club to defeat Hampton, found the club at its weakest point: three regulars were unable to participate and Weeks, the star pitcher and captain, was unable to take the mound.

Hampton was hit heavy by the graduation last week, losing no less than five star players.

The record this season:
Sanborn 16-8; Raymond, 9-1; Hamilton, Mass., 5-1; Traip, Kittery, Me., 7-0; Exeter 15, Hampton 2; Hamilton, 15-1; Sanborn, 13-4; Newmarket, 4-1; Raymond, 8-3; Exeter 11-2 and Traip, 10-1.

lauded the beach for its opportunity for family entertainment and in particular its fine playground.

Daniel Dickinson, chief engineer of the state Highway Department spoke of the efforts to prevent further erosion of the New Hampshire coastline and said that one of the most important achievements was the stabilizing of the Hampton river.

A rough sketch of his plan includes a 4,000-foot seawall at the cost of $200,000 and a new bridge across the Hampton river which will cost in the neighborhood of $650,000.

Russell P. Tobey, new director of Forestry and Recreation, in New Hampshire, pledged further development of the bath house area in the "not too distant future".

George J. Keville, director of Parks and Playgrounds in Massachusetts, and a former secretary of the Chamber of Commerce here, acted as toastmaster. In this capacity he presented John C. Percival, a diamond wrist watch.

At the head table, Governor Charles M. Dale, Governor and Mrs. Maurice J. Tobin, Rev. and Mrs. Floyd Kinsley, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Goding, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Percival, George Keville, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Dickinson and Russell P. Tobey were seated.

Music was rendered by a Boston quartet and vocal solos were given by Bill Elliot, Jim McDonald, Boston and Charles Gray, Portsmouth.

Summer Visitors Note Improved Park At Center

Throngs of summer visitors who arrive in Hampton by bus and train have commented on the improved appearance of Hampton Center this season.

Window boxes filled with flowers adorn the newly painted depot. Tub-mounted evergreens and a well-cared-for oval have added to a favorable impression of the village.

Under the sponsorship of the Hamptons' Kiwanis club, a committee was formed in mid-winter for the beautification of the depot yard. Working on the theory that the depot yard presents the first impression of our town to visitor or vacationist, a committee of representatives of all organizations in town of which Al Tower of Lamie's was chairman, began to work to produce the results now visible.

The Boston and Maine Railroad, when asked by Rep. Raymond L. Goding, agreed to support the efforts of the committee. Four 12-foot settees and three swing-top rubbish receptacles will be furnished by the B & M.

The project is supported financially by donations from the Kiwanis club, Chamber of Commerce, Monday club, Garden club, Congregational Church Guild, The Mothers' Circle, Hampton Beach Women's Club, Ocean Side Grange, Rebecas, Odd Fellows and the Wesleyan Guild of the Methodist church.

A new flag pole and flag were installed by the American Legion.

WE SELL WAR BONDS DAY AND NIGHT

Largest Crowd In Years At Beach Over Weekend

The largest crowd for early summer of visitors in four years arrived at Hampton Beach for the weekend. Chief of Police Jerome Harkness reported the traffic was heavier than usual as "A" gas coupons jumped from four to six gallons in value and motorists headed for the beach. Trains and buses also were loaded to capacity, besides private cars. The Casino Ballroom, open for the first time this season was crowded, servicemen being in the majority. By Sunday afternoon many restaurants, diners and roadside stands had exhausted their supply of food.

Along with the increased gas ration, two days of fair, warm weather for the first time this month also beckoned the vacationists to the beach.

GREAT BOAR'S HEAD AT HAMPTON BEACH

Until the advent of the trolley cars around 1900, to be followed 15 years later by the wide ownership of the automobile, "Great Boar's Head", as it was called, was one of the few great wonders of New Hampshire.

The state's short coast line of 18 miles was a place that people inland liked to visit with horse and team. Children would play in the sand along the beach, the elders would enjoy the ocean, which always moves mankind with a spell of awe, and perhaps, fish, dig clams, gun, and surely pick up shells and sea-moss to take home.

Of all the delights of the 18-mile coast was "Great Boar's Head", so-called to distinguish it from "Little Boar's Head" over the line toward Rye.

When John Farmer and Jacob B. Moore in 1823 published their "Gazeteer of New Hampshire", they included an engraving of "Great Boar's Head", fronting the account of Hampton at page 143.

It's a most interesting picture. It shows the land from bottom, where stood the farms of two families, to the top where sea-fowl were flying, was all tilled, and we get the lines of growing things. It shows the naked hill, just as it stood before it was built upon, and to the top of which our people had been climbing to look off since 1636.

And earlier than that it must have delighted the red men for centuries, and those white visitors from North Europe and also the party of Capt. John Smith, both of which parties went ashore here. If the stones found in recent years show correctly the scratched letters of some message from Eric the Red in 1000 A. D., that party remained at the head of the Boar some days, and near it buried one of their party.

A population of 140,000,000 is seen for the United States in 2000.

ing a great increase in meat because even though OPA approves the allotment, distribution still will remain a problem with the present shortage of railway and trucking facilities. However, enough meat will arrive to help relieve the distressing shortage with which the summer visitors have had to cope.

Rep. Adams said James J. Madigan, chief of the OPA meat division, told him that the agency would help move enough food to cover the ration points brought into New Hampshire by vacationists from other areas, if the need could be accurately estimated.

A quick spot survey is being made through the state government and hotel owners association to determine how much meat would satisfy the point demands.

Plan Desserts To Use Little Sugar

"What do we have for dessert today Mummy?" is a familiar question in every household where there are children. Yes, and just as familiar in the home where the children are grownup. It is a question that the homemaker rather dreads just now with sugar supplies short, and fresh fruit just beginning to come into the market.

But there are a number of desserts that don't require much sugar—custards, cereal puddings, fruit gelatins. Make it a habit to save the juice from canned fruit to be used as a flavoring and to sweeten other fruit or for pudding sauces. Use prepared pudding mixes that have sugar added.

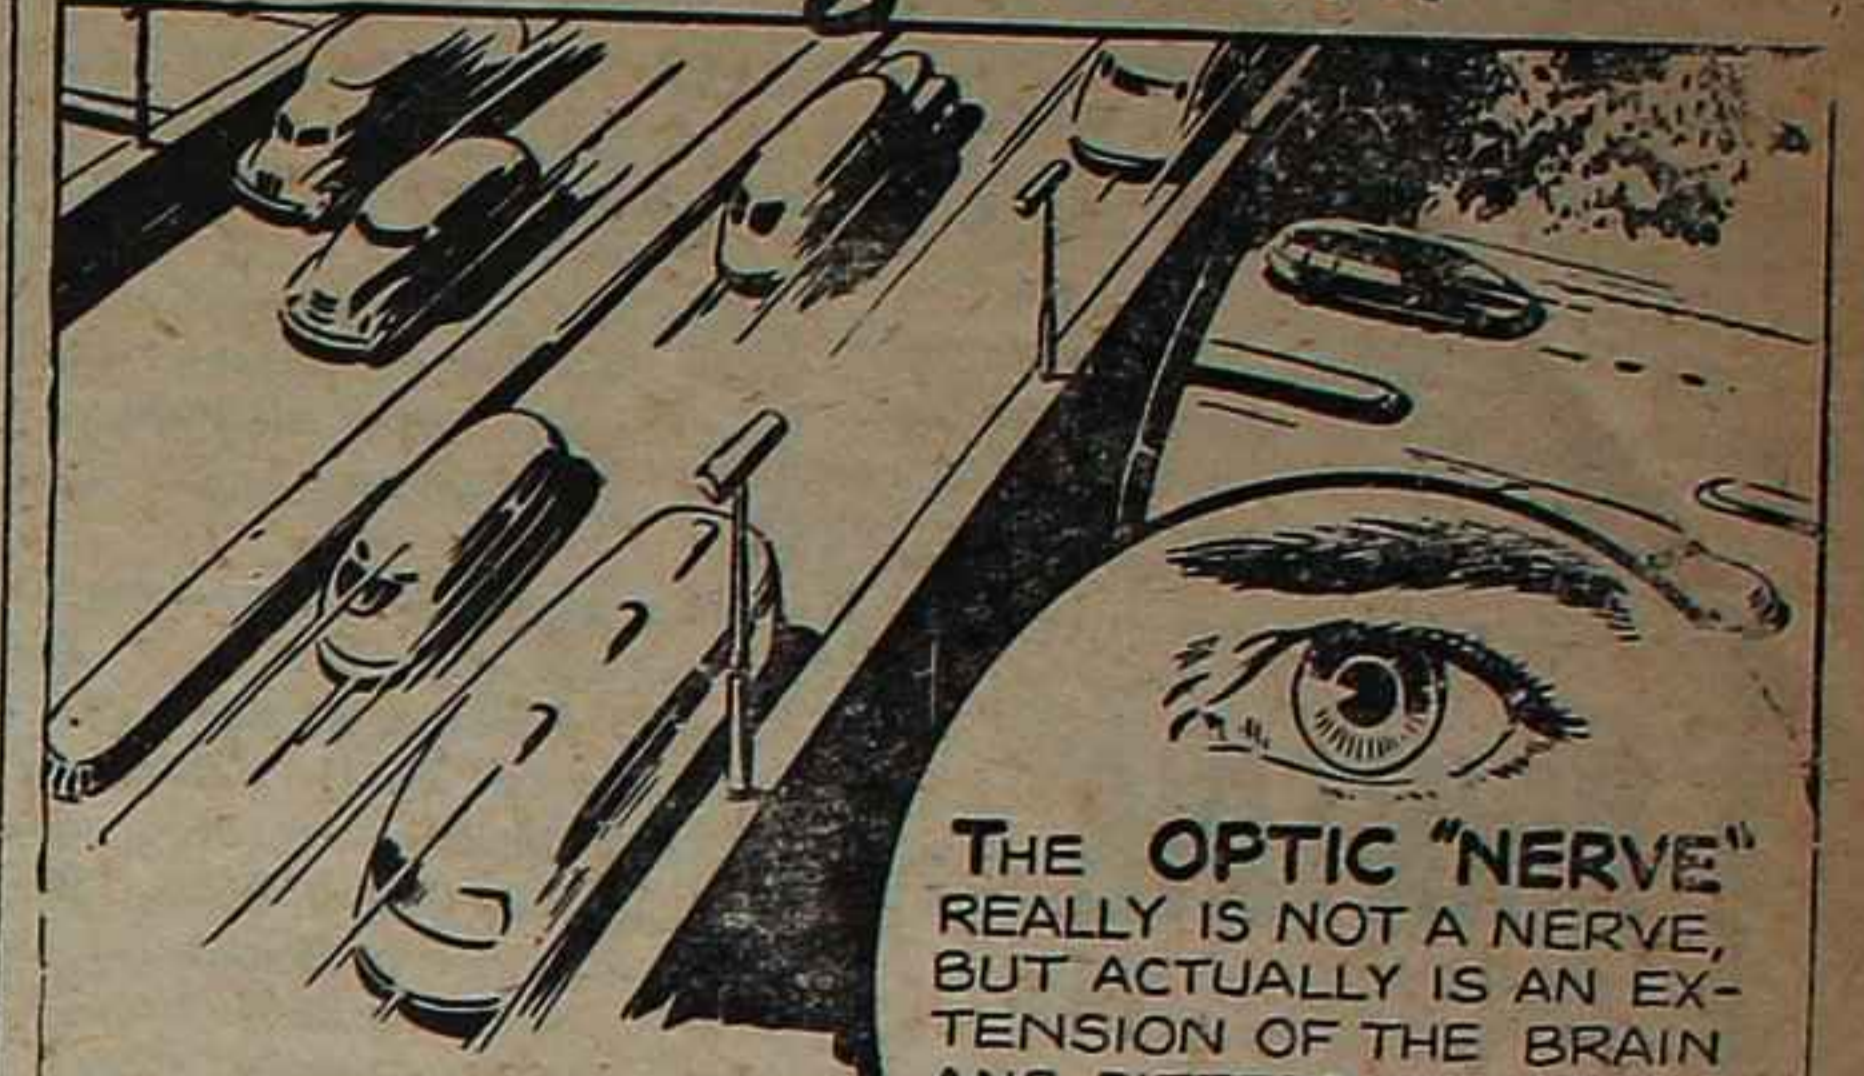

And go back to the old-fashioned gingerbreads, apple sauce cakes, and molasses cookies. Molasses, honey, or corn syrup, and maple syrup if you are fortunate enough to have some, can be used for part of the sugar in many desserts. However, Elizabeth E. Ellis, Extension nutritionist at the University of New Hampshire, suggests that it is wise to use recipes that have been worked out for each substitute.

Sgt. Nutting Of Famed 82nd Given Army Discharge

Sgt. Donald D. Nutting, member of the 82nd Airborne Division, husband of Mrs. Ruby Marshall Nutting, who returned home recently after 21 months overseas, has received his discharge from the Army under the point system.

Sgt. Nutting holds the Unit Presidential Citation, the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster and Bronze Star Medal. The latter was awarded for courageous and effective action far beyond the normal duties of his rank.

During the fighting in Belgium, Nutting's platoon leader was wounded and the men were scattered under the German attack. Sgt. Nutting, Assistant Squad leader, quickly reorganized the platoon under heavy mortar, artillery and small arms fire and moved from man to man disregarding his exposure to severe fire. Through sheer leadership ability and force of character, Nutting welded the scattered group into a hard-hitting force, drove the Germans from the wooded ground, secured the platoon's objective and organized an outpost line for his battalion.

Sgt. Nutting took part in the airborne landings in Normandy on D-Day, the airborne invasion of Holland and fought in Belgium and Germany. After being wounded in Holland in October, 1944, he was flown by the RAF to a hospital in England. He returned to duty in December, 1944, and fought in the battle of the "Belgium Bulge" where he was wounded for the second time. However, he was soon back in action, taking part in the push into Germany, where in May, 1945, the Germans surrendered en masse to the 82nd Airborne Division.
