

Sgt. Nutting Of Famed 82nd Given Army Discharge

Sgt. Donald D. Nutting, member of the 82nd Airborne Division, husband of Mrs. Ruby Marshall Nutting, who returned home recently after 21 months overseas, has received his discharge from the Army under the point system.

Sgt. Nutting holds the Unit Presidential Citation, the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster and Bronze Star Medal. The latter was awarded for courageous and effective action far beyond the normal duties of his rank.

During the fighting in Belgium, Nutting's platoon leader was wounded and the men were scattered under the German attack. Sgt. Nutting, Assistant Squad leader, quickly reorganized the platoon under heavy mortar, artillery and small arms fire and moved from man to man disregarding his exposure to severe fire. Through sheer leadership ability and force of character, Nutting welded the scattered group into a hard-hitting force, drove the Germans from the wooded ground, secured the platoon's objective and organized an outpost line for his battalion.

Sgt. Nutting took part in the airborne landings in Normandy on D-Day, the airborne invasion of Holland and fought in Belgium and Germany. After being wounded in Holland in October, 1944, he was flown by the RAF to a hospital in England. He returned to duty in December, 1944, and fought in the battle of the "Belgium Bulge" where he was wounded for the second time. However, he was soon back in action, taking part in the push into Germany, where in May, 1945, the Germans surrendered en masse to the 82nd Airborne Division.

Now Stationed In Caribbean Area

First Lieutenant Donald Langley, USAAF, husband of Mrs. Margery Sargent Langley and son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Langley of the Langley, B street, is stationed at Antigua where he is in charge of two crash boats with the Army Air Force Rescue Squadron Boats.

Lt. Langley received his commission after graduating from Officer's Candidate School in Miami. He was eventually assigned to the Caribbean theater where he was attached to the AAF Rescue Squadron Boats and was stationed in Trinidad and Tobago Island.

In December 1944, Lt. Langley received a commendation from General Hayes for his work in setting up rescue boat squadrons for maintenance and operation.

Mrs. Langley and her eighteen-month old son, "Jay" are staying at North Beach for the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Sargent of Amesbury, Mass.

Thorsten J. Kaljarvi, executive director of the State Planning and Development Commission, under whose supervision the report of the 1945 Legislature, entitled, "The Great Bay Plan", was prepared, appeared before the Kiwanis Club of the Hamptons at the club's regular weekly meeting in Community Hall, Hampton Beach, last Monday night to fully explain the proposed development of the coastal hinterland.

Mr. Kaljarvi stated at the outset that he thought it was time for some "straight talking" with relation to this development plan which became controversial at the last minute and one gathered by inference that the speaker felt the objections, which led to the withdrawal of the legislation, designed to put the Great Bay plan into effect were ill-considered and perhaps trivial. He brought out that the cost of the development, over a twenty year period, estimated as approximately five million dollars, was only two or three per cent of

Of "Beach Party"

The first of the "Youth Activities" programs was broadcast from the bandstand over radio station WHEB, Monday July 2 at 7:30 pm with George J. Keville, former secretary of the Hampton Beach Chamber of Commerce, as master of ceremonies.

Bob Fuller and Win Bettison, announcers from WHEB, conducted a quiz program called the Hampton Beach Party in which the audience participated. Two girls and their Marine escorts, a girl from Texas, a girl visiting Hampton Beach for the first time and a gentleman who had just been swimming, took part in the show. The prize was twenty silver dollars. This is the first of a series of weekly Monday night broadcasts to be held at the band stand at the beach.

Beach Parking Problem

The tremendous crowd at the Beach over the past weekend only served to accentuate the need for a large parking area to accommodate the cars.

In other columns of this paper you readers may behold the kind attention given this problem by the State Highway Department back in 1938. The only trouble is that the plan never got any further than the drawing-board stage—like so many other proposed projects for the improvement of Hampton Beach.

It may also be noted in the legend of the sketch that the same Daniel Dickinson who spoke so prophetically at the annual Chamber of Commerce and Precinct banquet a few weeks ago was in on this plan. A few persons have informed us that Dickinson is the only friend Hampton Beach has in the Highway Department and that the Highway Commissioner is the real holdback in Concord.

Whoever is at fault we will repeat here that the Highway Department has sadly neglected the outstanding recreational resort in New Hampshire. Some may point to the thousands of dollars the State has spent during the past few years in patching up the destruction caused by the spring storms. But can anyone give us one good reason why they shouldn't?

No one can deny that Hampton Beach, which annually entertains an estimated million visitors, is far and away the largest single recreational center in the entire state. If these million people spent on an average of 10 dollars per capita, which would be a low estimate, then common sense would tell us that the Beach contributes annually approximately 10 million of the total estimated 50 million dollar recreation business in New Hampshire.

Surely a few thousand dollars is but a paltry sum to spend in the protection and beautification of a resort which contributes approximately one-fifth of the state's recreational income.

The town has made a wise move in purchasing land for the parking area and the town officers should be commended for their promptness in carrying through the project.

Now it becomes our task to develop this land—a project which may take some time for the town doesn't have the resources available to complete the job immediately. But at least we have made a start in the right direction and we can safely predict that another seven years won't be needed to build a parking area.

Thoughtless Visitors

Hampton and its beach has achieved a far-reaching fame for its hospitality so that we know a few words regarding thoughtlessness on the part of summer visitors will not be misconstrued.

Every year the town spends thousands of dollars to keep the beach and town clean and the state also spends a large amount keeping the roadsides trimmed and clean.

Yet despite adequate refuse containers along the beach, people are lax in throwing their papers and bags in the proper place. It's always so easy to just drop the paper bag right where you are rather than carry it along a little way and deposit it in a rubbish container.

As for roadside dumping—it's getting so bad that one man was heard to remark the other day "that he lived just one box of popcorn from the beach", while his neighbor further up the road "lived one pint of fried clams from the beach"—so regular is the habit of transient people on their day home to throw out boxes and bags along the route.

Certainly all of us welcome visitors in our town and beach and most probably the merchants welcome their patronage in popcorn, fried clams and hot dogs, but certainly none of us care to have refuse scattered all along the sidewalks and roadside.

Vacationists please take notice.

GREAT BAY —

the estimated income, which, he stated, might run from 250 to 500 million dollars.

"And", continued the Planning Commission executive, "one of the most uncomfortable moments I ever had in the 23 years I have spent in New Hampshire, was when I realized that I had been unable to get over to the people of this section the splendid potentialities of the Great Bay development."

The speaker alluded to the pre-eminence of the Great Bay area from the standpoint of both natural and business resources during the first 150 years of the state's history and then pointed to the fact that recently "the coastal hinterland has apparently gone to sleep."

This apathy, in view of the fact brought out by the recent recreation survey of the C. W. Hoyt Company, Inc., that there is less interest than heretofore in New England as a recreational area, may be most harmful, argued the speaker. With 34 states now appropriating funds for recreational publicity every one of its natural resources and likewise to offer every type of modern, recreational business facility "with a smile, with good-will and with courteous hospitality."

Mr. Kaljarvi called for a broad view of the state's recreational picture and said that although its exact dollar value was impossible to estimate accurately, yet it is nevertheless certain that in 1939 the state's recreational industry was showing every evidence of a healthy, sustained growth which certainly could not have been said of either manufacturing or agriculture.

The speaker then went on to outline the manner in which the planning and Development Commission had been authorized to make the Great Bay study by direction of the General Court in 1941 and further direction from the same source in 1943 after a progress report had been approved. "The legislation authorizing the study was promoted by the Seacoast Regional Association", stated Mr. Kaljarvi, "and during the four years between 1941 and 1945 we worked hand-in-glove with the Seacoast body." "And", he continued, "in order that all moot points might be satisfactorily cleared up as they arose, we held meetings and numerous conferences in various parts of the areas on numerous occasions."

Mr. Kaljarvi expressed surprise that so few people in this section were acquainted with the Great Bay area and then went on to outline three or four of the main problems which the four-year study had brought out.

First, was the problem of access to the waters of the Bay and he thoroughly explained that the proposals for acquisition of land for this purpose were few in number and the areas to be acquired, relatively small in dimensions. He said that the Bay channels had become filled with silt chiefly because the eel-grass had been destroyed by harmful waste chemicals, probably emanating from industrial plants. Access will have to be made at points near channels and the channels will have to be kept clear. He said the eminent domain provisions of the bill were intended primarily to permit the state to secure these necessary access areas. "There is a perfectly marvelous network of developed and undeveloped roads, aggregating sixty miles in length, around the entire Bay area," said the speaker.

The second problem of pollution is serious but not insurmountable, it will cost from two to three million dollars to eradicate causes of pollution which are caused by three main sources; raw sewage, waste from industrial plants discharged into tributary streams and ordinary rubbish thrown into the Bay and into the streams entering the Bay. "It would be foolish to attempt this phase of the project merely in the interest of the approximately 800 persons who live around the Bay," said the speaker in emphasizing the wider interests that are involved.

The money to take care of pollution might be secured from federal and state sources and from individual communities, but in any event it should be turned several times over in the form of a profitable marine industry. Mr. Kaljarvi quoted the Marine Fisheries Commission as estimating that two million dollars a year clam industry would result from cleaning up the Bay pollution and that lobster fisheries would yield another half million dollars each year, not to mention other possible returns of a similar and equally astounding nature.

The third problem, and one which seemingly created considerable controversy, had to do with methods of controlling the water areas. The commission advocates no dam at present and the eventual construction of a tide-gate dam at the Sullivan Bridge, only if the need is demonstrated.

Another minor and a fourth problem has to do with the use of certain swamps, pasture lands and scrub woodlands as a game sanctuary.

In concluding his remarks the executive director of the Planning Commission touched upon still another problem—the problem of control. "We realize that a project of this magnitude cannot simply be tossed at the people and because of the statewide interest a purely local control organization is precluded," said Mr. Kaljarvi, "so, we combine the ideas of state and local control and set up an authority in which both features are to be found." He stated that the delay in the printing of the report was to be regretted because it made impossible a sufficient interval of time between the publication of the report and the introduction of legislation to put the report into effect. Under these circumstances he was content to "let the legislation be killed and then allow the report to speak for itself." He hopes that careful consideration and study will convince all residents of this section of the importance of setting up an authority by legislation in order that the plan for the development of the Great Bay area may eventually be consummated.

The meeting was most successful and the meal, provided by a committee of Kiwanians included Alfred Tower, Victor Grandmaison and Ralph Harris, was very enjoyable. Three visiting Kiwanians were present and two of the members were accompanied by guests. The president was unable to announce the place of the next meeting because it is not definitely known whether the "Goody Cole Room" at Lamie's Tavern will be ready for occupancy by next Monday. There will be a meeting of the directors on Friday evening, June 29 at the office of President Don Rand on High street.

Driver Fined By Court For Hitting Sailor At Beach

One case was heard in Hampton Municipal court Saturday with Judge Perkins presiding. James Garrity, of Lowell, Mass., was fined $10 and costs on a charge of operating at unreasonable speed, and on a second charge fined $15 and costs for inadequate brakes. Police Chief Jerome F. Harkness preferred charges, with police officer Leavitt Magrath testifying. Mr. Garrity struck a sailor while driving along Ocean boulevard Sunday June 25. The sailor received no injuries except a leg bruise.

Remember When?

We wonder how many people remember when Hampton Beach looked like this? At the time the above photo was taken there were only a few houses between the Casino property, then owned by Graves and Ramsdell, and the world-famous mile long wooden bridge over Hampton River.

Lt. John R. Rowe Flies Home On Two-Week Leave

Lt. John R. Rowe, USNR, and his wife, Joyce Holmbring Rowe flew from Chicago here, Saturday. Lt. Rowe will spend his two-week leave with his wife at their home in South Hampton, Mass.

Lt. Rowe has been stationed at Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin as assistant to the supervisor on ship building since April 1942. This shipyard is a private-owned yard under government contract. When Lt. Rowe was assigned there, it was "nothing but a coal pile". The biggest problem was the fact that there were no trained workers.

Immediately vocational schools were set up and today 90 ships of different types have been delivered from Sturgeon Bay to East Coast ports. These deliveries are made down the Mississippi to New Orleans or up the St. Lawrence to Boston.

Lt. Rowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Atwood Rowe, Marsh avenue, is in charge of inspection and force trials and deliveries. He has done a large part in making this inland port of great assistance to the war effort.

While he was in Chicago last week, he located "Larry" Tucker and the two old friends had a pleasant reunion in the famous Empire Room at the Palmer House.

Mark Twain attended a log cabin school until he was 12 years old.

Police Force, Hit By Manpower Shortage Again

The manpower shortage has again this year affected the Hampton Police force as well as all other institutions but in spite of that difficulty, Chief of Police Jerome Harkness has built up an efficient body of men to maintain law and order at the beach and in the village.

They include: Chief of Police Harkness, Lester Brewster, Clifford Eastman, Ellsworth Hobbs, Albert Jacobs, John Keefe, Leavitt Magrath, Charles Meeks, Scott Paul, Gordon Ray, Roy Shaw and Clarence Schrock.

President Harold W. Stoke. In line with the university custom, Professor Scudder is relinquishing administrative duties after a long term of service, but will continue his teaching. Chairmanship of the department will be assumed on July 1, by Dr. Sylvester H. Bingham, associate professor of English.

Professor Scudder received his B. S. degree from Dartmouth in 1903. From 1904 to 1913 he did newspaper work in New England. He was state publicity director for the Federal Food Administration in 1918 and in charge of publicity for New Hampshire College, 1914-23.

In 1913 he became instructor in English, being made full professor in 1928. Following a year of study at Cambridge University in England, he returned to the University of New Hampshire and served as head of the English department from 1939 and acting dean of the College of Liberal Arts for two years.

Kiwanis Discuss Plans For Circus At Beach July 30

The Kiwanis Club of the Hamptons held an open meeting at the new Constance Hotel, formerly Cutler's at the Beach Monday night. Host Edgar Lessard furnished the Kiwanians with a hospitable reception and the guests a very delectable dinner which was greatly enjoyed.

Instead of listening to a speaker, two items of business were taken up and discussed; first, the distribution along local business places of the glass banks used for the collection of funds for the club's work among underprivileged children; second, the coming Kiwanis circus.

It was announced that plans are completed for the first annual Kiwanis Circus, thrill show and Carnival which is to be held during the week of July 30 at the old Golf Driving Range on Winnacunnet road.

The circus, a Harlacher attraction features wild animals, horse, pony and dog acts and several unsurpassed aerial attractions. It is an entertainment designed primarily for children but providing a real thrill for grown-ups.

Thousands of free tickets will be distributed to the boys and girls of this vicinity by Kiwanians in business and friends of Kiwanis in business—men who have a real interest in young America. The circus begins Monday afternoon, July 30.

WE SELL WAR BONDS DAY AND NIGHT

Mr. Leon Thompson flew to New York City last week to give written permission to his seventeen-year old son, Malcolm, to enter the Navy for pilot's training. Malcolm was one of eleven out of 300 applicants who passed the examination for this training. He formerly attended schools in Hampton and graduated from a New York City high school in June.

Cpl. Ralph Moulton, USA, who is stationed in Germany with an Anti-Aircraft unit which operates half tracks, recently sent home to his father, Mr. Ralph Moulton, owner of the Ashworth Hotel, a box containing the complete equipment of a German paratrooper, including arms, clothes and money. Cpl. Moulton, who attended Florida Military Academy entered the Army in February 1942 and went overseas in November 1944 where he served with General Patton's Army.

The Hampton chapter "Bundles for America" booth and canteen for servicemen at the Beach, located on Ocean Boulevard, has been opened by the president of the chapter, Mrs. Annie W. Grenier for the season. Both are located just south of the Hampton Beach Chamber of Commerce information booth. Proceeds of the sales from the booth will be used for the benefit of the servicemen.

MATCH THEIR SPIRIT in the MIGHTY
7TH WAR LOAN DRIVE

YES, despite their long months and years of privation and suffering, those gallant men, just released from filthy Jap Prison Camps, still have their good old fighting spirit. They're itching to get back into the fight and give the Nips a taste of their own medicine.

Let's show them that we're not quitting either! Let's match their spirit with our dollars! Let's make this MIGHTY 7th War Loan the mightiest of them all!

But to come even close to matching their sacrifices, everyone here at home must buy War Bonds until it hurts. Buy double or treble the extra War Bonds you've bought in any previous drive. Remember, this is really two drives in one. In the same period last year, you were asked to subscribe to two War Loans.

So let's go, Americans. Our hard-fighting Soldiers, Sailors and Marines are giving their ALL. The least we can do is to lend our dollars.

ported that coastal traffic was the heaviest since wartime restrictions. Garage repair men were continually busy fixing flats and repairing broken parts of cars which have been in use since before the war.

With the temperature at 92 the traffic poured onto the beach in a double line. Cottages, hotels and rooms are reserved far in advance and those who had not made arrangements had to seek rooms in private homes.

Express trains were crowded with every seat taken and the aisles filled with many standees. All trains hauled as many extra cars as permitted to handle the vacation-bound passengers but under ODT rulings no extra trains could be run.

A large number were swimming in the unusually warm water of the ocean. Hal MacDonald's band gave its four regular band concerts and at the second concert in the evening at nine o'clock, Bill Elliot, the Singing Cop sang, receiving much applause.

Also during the band concert, entirely unexpected and delightful was the impromptu singing of a Merchant Marine, Ronnie Stuart, formerly a member of Charlie Spivak's orchestra.

Fishing was a favorite sport with many. All day long the pier was filled with rod and reelers and the "string, hook and clam" fisherman waiting for the illusive flounder. Many hired boats and went up Hampton river to try their luck there at high tide. Mrs. Fernald at the Bridge said that by four P. M. all bait had been sold. However there was not as large a catch as that of two weeks ago.

Food supplies were adequate for Saturday and Sunday, the only shortage being the popular hot dogs by late Sunday afternoon. Many visitors had taken no chances however and brought their lunches with them.

Who Said Hampton Beach Had A Parking Problem?

The above beautifully drawn sketch of a parking area designed to accommodate 4,000 automobiles should disprove any contention that Hampton Beach has a serious parking problem on its hands. The only drawback in that conclusion is the fact that although the plans were made in 1938 nothing as yet has been done by the State Highway Department.

The town of Hampton has just recently completed the purchase of a great part of the land proposed in the sketch and will now proceed to build its own parking area to accommodate the tremendous influx of weekend visitors.

Bass Reported Running Well In Hampton River

With the New Hampshire fishing season open on all species of small-mouth black bass, "the month of roses" this year becomes top fishing month too. There are a number of factors which are bringing this about.

Late spring weather has delayed the trout fishing; travel has been restricted; with the pre-season stocked trout not yet caught out, a second planting of trout has been completed in waters throughout the state. Moreover, trout are just coming to life, particularly in northern Granite State waters; like the anglers, fish have been held back by cold, wet weather.

Pickereel, perch, hornpout and other pan-fish appear to be more abundant than usual while fishermen have been fewer than in normal times. In the service or defense plants, sportsmen have not been able to do a great deal of ice-fishing during the winter months and this reacts favorably for the pond fishermen now.

Selectman Elroy Shaw, his son

Harold, Ralph Blatchford and son Donald, all of Hampton, had no difficulty taking limits of squaretails and rainbows in the Ossipee section last weekend. They fished streams like Pine river for the most part.

Harold Secord, Seabrook, hurried out of his house the other morning, bright and early, so he would be one of the first on a small pond not far from home. William Sanborn, a neighbor, watched Secord go. Then he dropped a line in Secord's own ice pond. He was still fishing when Secord came home. Harold asked William: "Did you catch any trout? Don't answer that. If there were any trout in Secord's pond, Harold Secord could catch them out of his kitchen window—he wouldn't need to go fishing elsewhere."

Sanborn smiled quietly. "Well, Harold," he replied, pulling an 18½-inch rainbow from his creel, "I did not catch many fish in your pond but I'm pleased with this one, anyhow."

What Secord said then, cannot be quoted.

Salt-water species are coming to life, too. Fishing in Hampton river with Roger Moore last week, the writer and Moore each hit one nice striped bass. Returning the following day, the writer took three fish—top weighing eight pounds; the other two, six and four pounds. Moore operated his outboard motor and pulled in a five pounder meanwhile. Another couple took eight strippers farther up-river. School fish probably will have arrived by the time this is published.

Hold Rites For George F. Cuddy

Funeral services for George F. Cuddy, well known resident of Lawrence, who died very suddenly at his home Friday, June 29, were held Tuesday morning with a solemn high mass in St. Patrick's Church, Hampton Beach.

Mr. Cuddy, president of M. Carney Co., is the father of George Russell Cuddy, owner of Cosy Corner Cafe, Hampton Beach. Besides his son he leaves his wife, Mrs. Anna (Moriarty) Cuddy; a brother, John E. Cuddy, Jr.; a sister, Mrs. Walter Sweeney and several nieces and nephews. Mr. Cuddy was once a professional boxer and sport promoter.
