Top Tunes Guessers Win Prize Records

Each week in the top tunes contest, Downer's Appliance Store has presented an LP album and the Beachcomber a pop record for the lucky guessers of the top tunes of the week.

This week the top tunes were correctly guessed by Ricky St. Laurent of Manchester, for the album from Downer's and by William St. Laurent, also of Manchester, for the pop record.

Employment Office Handles 4,000 Requests

The Hampton Beach office of the state division of employment security has received 4,000 applications for employment this year, it was announced this week by Mr. Robert Cushing, director of the office.

These applications represent all the New England states as well as Illinois, Maryland, Virginia, Florida, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, California, Arizona, Oregon, Washington, Oklahoma, Iowa, Alabama, Ohio, New York, Texas, the district of Columbia, the Panama Canal Zone, and Hawaii.

Mr. Cushing announced also that this office of the employment security will close next Tuesday, Aug. 26th. The main office, 580 State street, Portsmouth, remains open year round.

In February the Portsmouth office will begin sending notices to all colleges in New England. These notices are then placed on a conspicuous bulletin board. Interviews are arranged by the employment security office, beginning in May for summer jobs.

Fish And Game Lore

Have you ever looked in a pond and observed a jelly-like mass anywhere from the size of a grapefruit to that of a bushel basket? These translucent masses, speckled with brownish-colored polka dots, are generally attached to sticks or logs and you may have thought you were looking at fish or frog eggs. As a matter of fact you were looking at a colony of thousands of animals called bryozoa or moss animalcules.

The individual bryozoans are located on the outside of the jelly. The jelly-like stuff which is secreted by the animals is clear until it becomes discolored by algae and bacteria. Each tiny white spot on the jelly beneath the water consists of a hundred or more individual animals. As the colonies become large in the latter part of summer, they are apt to trap rain bubbles and float to the surface. The portions of the colonies exposed to air are killed. The jelly is pushed up in places by the bubbles and dries out to form dome-shaped shells.

When bryozoans are touched they give off slime, but they are ery sheath. After a few moments, however, the graceful tentacles will again blossom forth.

A peculiarity about bryozoans is their method of reproduction. It has two systems. As the colony increases in size the individuals simply reproduce by budding like a plant. During a certain period of the summer, however, small portions of the bryozoans are set aside in flat packages called "statoblasts". As these are reed they drift away, often in such large numbers that they form wind-rows along lake shores. The edges of these tiny packages have hooked spines which help them catch free rides on moving objects. Like seeds, they can overwinter and start new colonies of bryozoans the following spring.

Although there are about 3500 different kinds of bryozoa, most of them are found in salt water, only about 40 kinds being fresh water species. Of these, 14 species have been reported from America.

AUGUST FESTIVAL HIGHLIGHTS include: Top Left, Miss Hampton Beach of 1958, Carolyn Ann Komant, 17, of Kittery, Me., (right) and Miss New England Contest, Miss Hampton Beach will be crowned at tonight's Coronation Ball. Bottom left; A fishing contest for a plate of washers was staged by the Profile Antique Car League and the North Shore (Mass.) Old Car Club at their exhibition last Saturday. Top right, the Miss Hampton Beach float in Saturday's parade. Bottom right, Junior King and Queen, Veronica Pinkham and Robert Dennett ride another of Saturday's parade floats. The top left and both right pictures are by Colt Photo, Hampton. The bottom right picture was taken by summer staff photographer, Ed Jewell.

"Eye Of The Needle" Not Broadway Material

The audience at the Hampton Playhouse on Monday night witnessed the world premiere of a new play by Neal DuBrook, "Eye of the Needle". Those attending the Saturday night performance will undoubtedly witness the world's finale of the same play. It is 200 miles from here to Broadway. This is as close as "Eye of the Needle" will ever get to that cherished goal.

The script is a soaring into limbo. It is a fantasy in which a family that has been cheating on income tax for years, conveniently dies of ptomaine poisoning the night before an investigation of the internal revenue. The balance of the play concerns their thoughts and actions while in that interim space between death and judgment. Then it all turns out to be a mutual dream shared by mother, father and son, who spend the third act trying to rearrange their lives. It sounds interesting but isn't!

The author's lines are completely devoid of any individual style of imagination. Whenever an actor is set to deliver a provocative line, out pops a quotation from the Bible, Shakespeare, Lewis Carroll, Robert Browning or one of the tattered old bon mots that Americans have been saying for years—it's always darkest before the dawn — every cloud has a silver lining — you can't get to Heaven in a handcar. The entire play sounds as if the author had opened Bartlett's Familiar Quotations and taken the lines directly from between its covers.

The play starts off in low gear and remains there throughout the three acts — except when Maggie Owens had a scene. Miss Owens seemed to be the only person in the cast that understood her role and was able to create an amusing character. The balance of the cast with Paula Trueman in the lead role of Rufina Sweet, Josephine Woods as Mrs. Strawberry, Sandy Campbell as Corbin Sweet, Jeff Bryant as Roy Sweet, Dorothy Rice as Ramona, Jeannette Cliff as Juanita Townsend, and Richard Kennedy as Carl Cooper, were bogged down with inadequate material that never gave them an opportunity to create anything in the way of a character.

For a play which presumably dealt in great general truths of right and wrong and getting the most out of life, the author never approaches any sort of resolution. In fact, the script is in very poor taste by indicating that cheating on one's income tax can be a white-washed sort of game. He leaves the impression that all one has to do to get out of trouble is to bribe the internal revenue agent and that the agent is all too willing to accept the bribe. To offer this package of ideas as standard Americana is too much to try and swallow. Income tax cheating and dishonest internal revenue agents exist, but to portray them as generally acceptable procedure is an insult to the American public.

Except for some excellent stage settings by Robert Winkler, "Eye of the Needle" has little to offer the theatre going public. No amount of rewriting can ever rescue

Plans For '59 Boat-O-Rama, Miss N.H. Contest Discussed

It was announced last week that preliminary plans for a Boat-O-Rama for the last week of June, 1959, are being made in cooperation with the Chamber of Commerce, by Mr. Joseph H. Aspey, president, Northeast Boat Show, Inc.

Along with this boat show would be the Miss New Hampshire contest to select a girl for the Miss Universe contest, early next summer, for which preliminary plans are being made by Mr. Alfred Patricelli and the chamber. Mr. Patricelli is director of the Miss Universe contest.

The first annual Boat-O-Rama last June was sponsored by the Northeast Boat Show, Inc. The experience. You may, at times, wonder why the U. S. Coast Guard boards your boat. Always remember it is for your own protection. The Coast Guard is the boater's friend and is always ready to risk his life to save one who is in distress.

"There are many things one must know before starting out. Get acquainted with your storm warnings, they are there for your protection. If it is foggy don't leave the mooring or float. Should fog settle down when you are out, drop anchor and wait for it to lift. Never overload your boat. Boats are built for so much weight, up to that point you are safe on the water. Never take chances by trying to overtake another boat, or by passing too close or too fast, it is against the Rules of Navigation. Above all, be sure your boat is properly equipped according to United States Coast Guard requirements.

"After all these factors have been considered and one has become familiar with the operation of his boat, you are ready to enjoy the pleasure that can be derived from exploring our ocean, rivers and bays.

emphasis of the show was water safety, and the following are Mr. Aspey's thoughts on that subject:

"When one considers the purchase of a boat his first thought must be — what am I going to use a boat for, how large a boat do I need. Then consult a well established dealer as to the merits of the boat he thinks he needs and can afford to buy. It is even wise to stretch this point a little in order to get a boat that will fit his future needs.

"After getting his boat, safety is one of the most important factors, as in an automobile. There are several ways of obtaining the knowledge necessary for the safe operation of your boat. The public is fortunate in having such an organization as the United States Power Squadron where one can gain full knowledge in the Art of Navigation with no cost for instructions. The writer would strongly suggest that everyone intending to take a boat out avail themselves of the opportunity offered by attending these classes.

"We also have the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary which offers both technical and actual ex-

Hampton Harbor Navigation Aids Given Approval

The Hampton Harbor committee decided, this week, to accept the recommendations made by the Coast Guard Aids to Navigation officer, Lt. W. C. Akers, in a report published last week.

In this report it was stated that "although the proposed changes are not exactly what the committee desired, it is believed that these establishments will be sufficient to enable the prudent navigator to use the north entrance channel, both day and night, and if the necessity arises, the well marked south entrance channel still remains available."

Following a meeting at the town offices last Thursday, the committee stated that the immediate installation of the recommended changes would promote safer boating, however, some markings in addition have been recommended by the committee as necessary for the safety of boating at night and in foggy conditions.

The following report, from the office of Town Manager John P. Batchelder, was sent to Capt. K. S. Davis, commander, 1st Coast Guard District, Boston, and copies to Sen. Norris Cotton, Sen. Styles Bridges, and to Rep Chester Merrow:

"The Hampton Harbor committee which had the pleasure of meeting with you reconvened on August 21 to consider the report which was prepared by Lieutenant Commander W. C. Akers, concerning the installation of certain navigational aids in Hampton Harbor.

"The committee appreciates the promptness and thoroughness with which this report was prepared. The committee believes that the recommendations are excellent and will do much to improve the navigability of our harbor. We recognize the fact that your district has limited funds with which to operate, and we feel that to have these aids to navigation installed immediately will do much to promote safe boating in our waters.

"We concede that the four buoys which we had requested be installed in Hampton River should probably be installed by the Town of Hampton, or the local boat club. We make this concession in view of the fact we understand that the present policy of the Coast Guard is to assume responsibility for the marking of open waters rather than local rivers. We do request that in the event this policy should change in the future, in that other local waters are being marked by the Coast Guard, we desire that our request for these markings be placed on file, and that the markings be erected by the Coast Guard at the time of any change in this policy.

"The committee feels very strongly that certain other navigation aids need to be erected in Hampton Harbor in order to prevent future accidents with their toll of lost lives. These additional markings are described as follows:

1. Hampton Harbor north entrance channel. Replace 2nd class tall can with white reflector with a lighted buoy including a sound device. The committee feels that
2. The committee feels that the present number 8 black and red buoy should be replaced with a lighted buoy. The committee feels that this is one of the more important marking devices in Hampton Harbor, and that this definitely should be equipped with a lighting device.
3. The committee feels that the present number 6 buoy should be equipped with a sound device. This recommendation was advanced especially by the commercial fishermen who use that entrance route. Many of them stated that they had been in serious trouble in the area of that number 6 buoy on many occasions.
4. The committee feels very strongly that the harbor entrance should be marked with a permanent spindle with reflector to be located on both north rock and south rock. These items were included in our original request, and we feel them to be absolutely essential to the proper harbor marking system.

"The committee greatly appreciates your cooperation in this matter, and believes that the present program will do much to assist in the saving of lives. We also feel that the program should eventually include the additional items which we have specified in the preceding paragraphs."

Bay Staters Win Talent Show Finals

In the talent show finals held Monday on the bandstand Patty Danahy, 12, of Saugus, Mass., came in first in the junior division, dancing her way thru "Around The World in 80 Days".
First place in the senior division was taken by Don Romano of Nahant, Mass., who sang "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing".
All those who competed in the finals were first place winners (both divisions) in one of the previous Monday talent shows this summer.

Third place among the seniors went to the "Quarter Notes" from Manchester, including Paul Bacon, 16, Dave Purcell, 18, Ted Ling, 18, and Gary Wengel, 16.

Others competing in the senior division were vocalist Edwina Okasa, of Hudson, Mass.; accordionist, Mrs. Carolyn MacKenzie of Portsmouth; vocalist, Maryanne Meacham, of Fitchburg, Mass.; and vocalist Allan Clark, of Worcester, Mass.

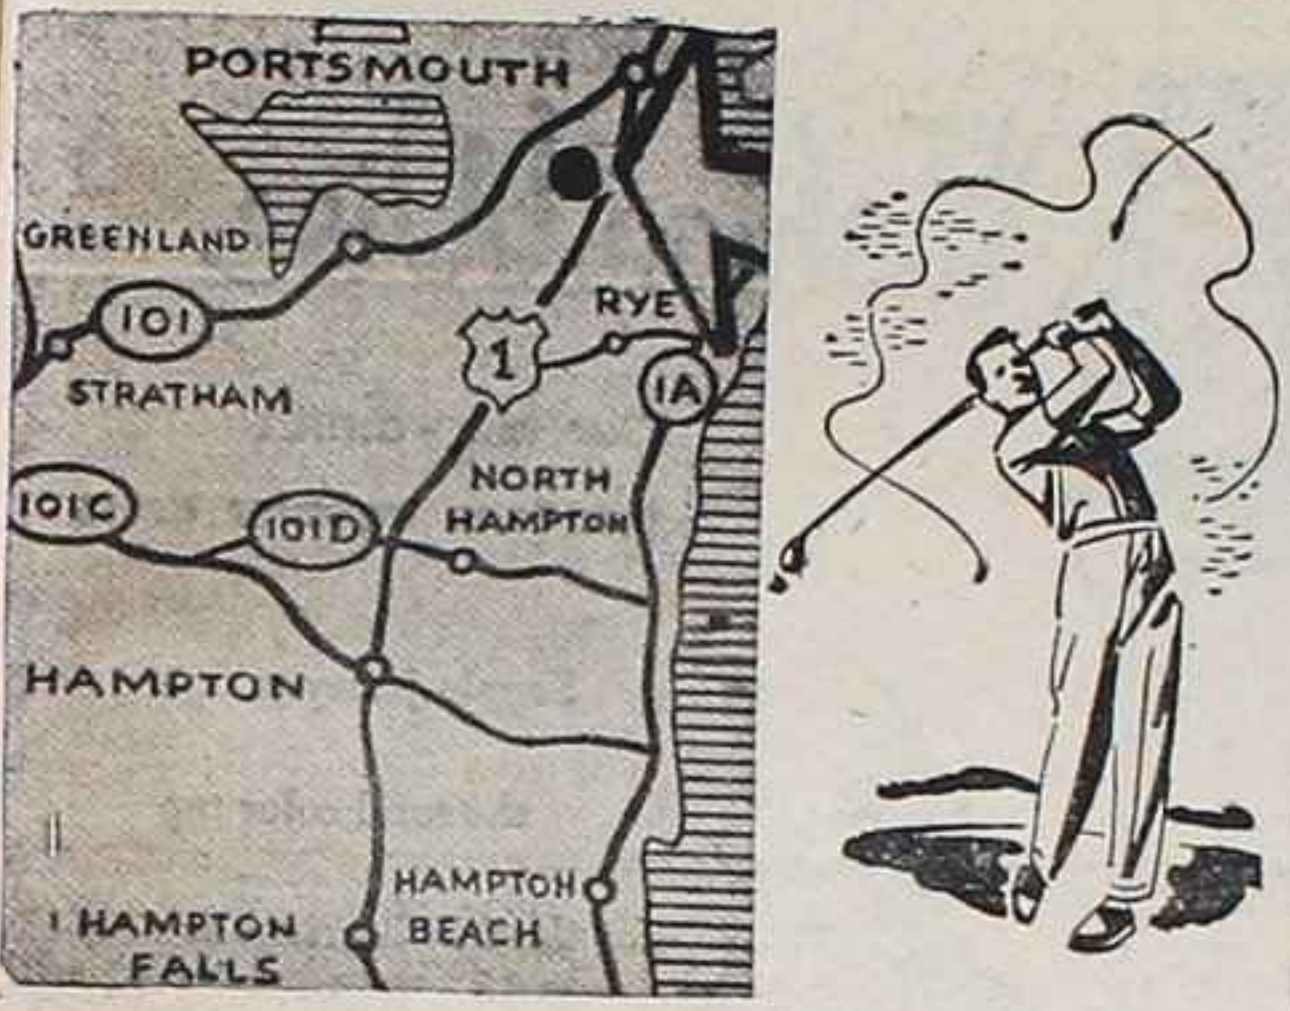

In the junior division the other performers were dancer Sheila Marie Henderson, 4, of Westwood, Mass.; and two vocalists, John Patrick McCarthy, 11, of Lowell, Mass.; and Maria Elena Barile, 3, of Manchester.

Public Hearing Slated On Water Rate Hikes

The state Public Utilities Commission has granted a public hearing to be held in Concord, September 11, in the State House Annex at 11 a.m. as a result of a protest made August 18 by the Hampton Beach Village District against a proposed increase in rates by the Hampton Water Works company to become effective September 1st.

Prior to this action by the beach precinct and the granting of a public hearing on the matter by the Public Utilities Commission, a Water Rate committee was formed to represent the towns of Hampton and North Hampton and the precincts of Rye Beach and Jenness Beach in this issue. This committee met with the state commission August 14th, and as a result, at last week's meeting of the Water Rate committee, a long letter was drawn up protesting the increases, and seeking data on the following questions:

- (1) "The finding of the commission as to whether or not any rate increase was to be recommended by the commission, for general water service or public fire protection service.
 - (2) "The decision of the commission as to whether or not they would recommend the application of inch foot main charges in place of fire hydrant rental charges.
 - (3) "The decision of the commission as to the effective date of an increase, if any were to be granted."
- At Tuesday night's meeting of the committee, Fred Gagne, beach commissioner, was present. The Water Rate committee agreed to support the protest begun by the beach precinct, which has resulted in a public hearing being granted. The towns and precincts in the committee will be represented by legal counsel at the hearing, September 11th—Hampton by Judge John Perkins, and North Hampton by Judge William Treat.

No. Hampton Girl Plans Year's Study In France

Leaving September 1st for a year of study in France at the University of Paris, is Miss Sarah Cutts of North Hampton, a summer employe at the Hampton Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Miss Cutts attends Carleton College, Minn., and her year's study abroad will constitute her junior year. She plans to return by next July 1st.

State Park Patronage Off 7 Percent At Beach

CONCORD, Aug. 27 — Labor Day will close the season in four of New Hampshire's state parks but the other 21 will remain open during the foliage season for the benefit of residents and tourists, Robert E. Sullivan, state park superintendent, announced today.

Parks closing September 1 will be Forest Lake in Dalton, Hampton Beach in Hampton, Rhododendron in Fitzwilliam, Wadleigh in North Sutton, and the Wallis Sands State Beach in Rye.

In a season which started late and was marked by irregular attendance due to uncertain weather, particularly on weekends, park patronage through August 19 (the latest figures available), compared to last year, was as follows at the four closing parks:

Forest Lake, up 23 percent from 1957; Hampton Beach, down seven per cent; Rhododendron, up 133 per cent due to an exceptionally poor season in 1957; Wadleigh, down two per cent.

Bathing will cease September 1 at the following state parks: Bear Brook in Allentown, Echo Lake in North Conway, Franconia Notch, Moose Brook in Gorham, Mt. Sunapee in Newbury, (weekends only, weather permitting, until Sept. 14); Pillsbury in Washington, Wellington in Bristol, Wentworth in Wolfeboro, and White Lake in Tamworth.

After September 1, the following parks will permit picnicking only on weekends until Sept. 28: Milan Hill in Milan, Pillsbury, Wellington and Wentworth. At Miller State Park in Peterboro and Mt. Kearsarge in Warner, picnicking will be allowed on weekends until October 12.

Four important New England rivers start in New Hampshire: Androscoggin, Connecticut, Merrimack and Saco.
