Talent Show Finals Set For August 31 In Sea Shell

The finals of the weekly talent show competition will be held Monday evening, August 31, from the stage of the Sea Shell area.

In addition to the winners this week as listed elsewhere in the BEACHCOMBER, seven acts in each of the junior and senior divisions will be returning to vie for top honors.

In the junior division, the following persons have qualified for the finals by being named first place winners in the respective weekly contests.

They include The O'Reilly's, a song and dance quartet from Lawrence, Mass.; Prudy Gray, Saugus, Mass., who won with a French dance and song act; Lisa Beth Chandler and Michael Chandler, Lowell, Mass., another song and dance duo; Cynthia McCutcheon, Lowell, Mass., song and dance artist.

Also qualifying in the junior division were Frank J. Klemac, Charlestown, Mass., who won with a dance march; Joyce Ouellette, Rockdale, Mass., organist; and Peggy LeBlanc, 11, sophisticated tap dance routine.

closely advised and informed as to current Federal and State projects affecting the tidal lands and waters in the Town of Seabrook.

The Director is specifically authorized to negotiate with agencies of the U.S. Government such as the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and various agencies of the State of New Hampshire in the interest of the further development of the Marine Fisheries industries of Seabrook Harbor and related matters.

The Director announced that one of the first projects that is to be undertaken will be to negotiate with the Fish and Game Department for the removal of mussels from the Seabrook Middle Grounds as provided for in a special act passed during the last legislative session. The Director, who has been working closely with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on the Seabrook-Hampton Harbor project since 1957, will continue to work in coordinating and liaison capacity.

Thousands Jam Boulevard For Huge Parade

ON YOUR READY! Here the foreman is set as the pumpers stand ready on the first tub of Saturday's Firemen's Muster, the tub, "Quansmog" from Bath, Me. Saturday's muster was the largest for New England in 21 years with a large parade and 26 hand tubs. Staff Photo by Randall Thousands jammed the sides of Ocean Boulevard to watch one of the largest parades in beach history on Saturday morning.

The many decorated floats and convertibles were joined by 26 different firemen's groups and some of the prettiest beauty queens of the year.

Before the parade began, Miss Pat Curtin of Lawrence, Mass., was chosen Muster Queen of 1964-65. She was sponsored by Engine No. 3 Niagara of Brunswick, Maine.

Runnerups in the contest were Miss Marla McCourt of Portsmouth, sponsored by Engine D. A. Taggart of Goffstown, N. H. and in third place, Miss Janet Parker of Haverhill, Mass., sponsored by Engine Androscroggin of Topsham, Maine.

Although there were many beautiful floats in the parade, the judges finally selected "Ships of New England" with the Newburyport Rainbow girls as the best hotel sponsored float.

The best all-around floats selected were Hale Shoe store, a horse drawn float sponsored by the Hotel Association and The Patio.

The best antique was the Ben Richard Special, a 1908 Ford. The best Firemen's Muster musical group was the Oko's of Marblehead, Mass.

The parade was extra long this year because a postponement two weeks ago forced a combination of the annual beach parade with muster parade.

In the muster, the Volunteer of East Greenwich Conn., and the Hancock of Ashburnham, Mass., won first place in each division.

Hand Engines Make Beach Muster Success

Twenty six hand engines competed last Saturday at Hampton Beach in the largest firemen's Muster in New England in more than 20 years.

A first prize of $200 went to the "Volunteer" of East Greenwich, Conn. in class A and to the "Hancock" of Ashburnham, Mass. in class B.

The day's activity, which began with a beauty contest at 9:30 a.m. and concluded with the muster finals at 7:30 was marred by one accident. Allen

Bowen, 23, of Milford, Mass. slipped while working on the hand engine "Tarrant" of Bath, Maine, and was cut deeply on the left thigh. He was treated at the Exeter Hospital and released.

Several of the early starters in the muster were handicapped by a cross wind which did not stop until midway in the meet. The "Winnacunnet" No. 1 owned by the Hampton Beach Firemen's Relief Association, put in its first appearance under its new owners. The pride of the men and their desire to excel was a bit too great and one of the brakes was snapped in the first attempt to shoot a stream. The engine did shoot a stream of 161' 4" and this was the leading score until the wind changed.

The winning A tub hit 215' 6" and it was followed by the "Protection" No 1 of Newbury with a stream of 201' 4". This tub holds the world's record of more than 275 feet. Second place money was $150.

"Niagara" No 3 of Brunswick, Maine, was third with a stream of 197' 10" and the L.V. Spaulding" of Haverhill, Mass. was fourth with 190' 4". Third and fourth place collected $75 and $50 each.

Second place in class B went to "Tiger No 1" of Newmarket with a length of 179' 4". In third place was "D. A. Taggart" of Goffstown, N. H. with a stream of 167' 3". "Androscroggin" of Topsham, Maine, was fourth with 152' 5".

PAUL MONTINIERI of Hartford, Conn. receives his first place trophy from Henry Hamel for winning the senior division of the finals of the weekly talent show. Family Camporee Canceled

Richard "Wink" Tapply, New Hampshire Representative to the National Recreation Association recently announced they will be no New Hampshire Family Camporee this year.

His letter reads as follows: Dear Family Campers,

"I regret to announce that the New Hampshire Family Camporee, sponsored by the New Hampshire Recreation Society, will not be held this year. As you know the New Hampshire Recreation Association has raised funds since 1957 to retain a community recreation consultant in New Hampshire. As this recreation consultant I acted as New Hampshire Recreation Society. The Family Camporee was one of the programs of the Society.

"Last year the financial grant for the recreation service of the New Hampshire Recreation Association was not reached. Therefore, a bill, providing the new position of state recreation consultant, was submitted to the 1963 New Hampshire General Court. It was not approved. As a result, my services as a recreation consultant have been reduced to a half-time basis.

"Even so, I had hoped to carry on the Family Camporee. Many of you kindly offered assistance. I have finally had to decide, however, that this is impossible. As the Camporee has grown problems have increased, problems that cannot be delegated to others.

"Hopefully in 1965 legislators will approve the position of 'Community Recreation Director.' We may then again enjoy this Family Camporee and other outdoor recreation projects.

"Ruth joins me in wishing for you continued 'happy camping' with the type of good fellowship which prevailed at our annual New Hampshire Family Camporee."

Thieves Net $1700 In Beach P.O. Break

Federal, State and local police are investigating a break at the U. S. Post Office at Hampton Beach reported Monday morning, in which burglars took approximately $1700 in money and stamps.

Postal authorities said the thieves gained entrance, either late Sunday or early Monday morning, through an adjacent candy store. A door was forced which led from the cellar into the Post Office and once inside, the safe, which contained money, stamps and postal money orders, was opened.

Postal Inspectors closed parts of the building yesterday while investigating the robbery and took inventory. The Post Office was closed Monday but was reopened on Tuesday morning.

Plans Set For Sweeps Race

"Buddy" Wingfield, veteran Rockingham Park starter and one of the finest in the nation, is already making his plans for the starting of the $125,000 added New Hampshire Sweepstakes Classic at the Rock on September 12.

Wingfield staked off the area for the start of this mile and three sixteenths handicap for three year old which is far and away the greatest thoroughbred race ever offered in New England and which is attracting attention from coast to coast.

After careful measurement and survey of the 83 feet wide stretch, Wingfield came up with the answer to the question which has been asked time and again: how many can actually start in this Classic on Sept. 12?

Wingfield declared that he will be able to get a field of 20 away if necessary. This will be done by adding a special six gate stall which Lou Smith, president and managing director, secured from the united starting gate officials to the

Color Travelguide For N. H. Available

Concord, N. H.—A four page, mid-October or shortly thereafter. The average daily hospital cost in the United States has risen from $18.75 to $36.83 in the last ten years, according to the American Hospital Association.

The four color pictures showing New Hampshire in gaudy autumn garb came out especially well this year and the yellow, gold and blue colors are unusually strong and true.

The pamphlet, published as a joint effort of Profiles Magazine and DED, has a directory of very nearly 100 places to eat, sleep, check up on real estate for sale, or be entertained.

Top prominence this year is given on the front cover to a view from a knoll overlooking Cornish Village. Professional photographers Dick Smith of North Conway and Bill Finney of Concord are also represented.

The Travelguide is available at New Hampshire Vacation Centers in Boston, Cleveland, Montreal and New York, the New Hampshire pavilion at the World's Fair and expressway & other tourist information booths within the Granite State. It may also be had by writing to Travel guide Editor, Division of Economic Development, State House Annex, Concord, N. H. 03301.

DED said the Travelguide is "the third and last of three pieces which are a must for those planning visits within New Hampshire in the next few weeks." The others are the Autumn Extra Recreation Calendar and the standard Tourist Map.

Veteran observers, by the way predict the spectacle may well be a week to ten days early this year. This would move it up to the third weekend in September and close it out along about

FRANCONIA COLLEGE OFFERS NEW CAMPUS, CURRICULUM

FRANCONIA — Franconia College, New Hampshire's newest two-year, coeducational liberal arts institution, is getting ready to begin its second year next month with a student body from New England thruout the East, and, it now appears quite likely, from some countries overseas.

Perched on a hill in the heart of the White Mountains, Franconia College has added a new dimension to the traditional liberal arts education—teaching its students how to make the hard decisions of life. This is done through the "CORE" program, which, according to President John S. Fallon, is hinged on four basic concepts.

"We believe as a college in the existence of a Supreme Being," President explains. "We believe that every human being has an obligation to know himself and the factors which influence his decisions. We also believe that everyone must understand what influences the decisions of his neighbors."

Finally, we believe that the individual must learn to judge and assume the risk of action."

This type of program was enthusiastically accepted by last year's class of 83 students from 13 states and three foreign countries which comprised the entering class.

The CORE also attracted the attention of the Coordinating Board of Advanced Education and Accreditation Evaluation Committee which spent several days at Franconia College evaluating the school, its faculty, administration, physical set-up and its program.

"The Committee regards the 'CORE' area of the curriculum as one of Franconia's chief assets and a proper justification for the school's belief that it is not simply another liberal arts college. With its emphasis on an integration of disciplines, small classes and independent study, the Core program seems to be consistent with the best contemporary educational thought."

Franconia became the first college in the state to be recommended for provisional accreditation under legislation enacted by the 1963 Legislature. Under the terms of the legislation, the Coordinating Board will recommend to the incoming Legislature that Franconia College be extended provisional accreditation and the right to grant Associate in Arts and Associate in Science degrees.

Franconia is an old school, growing out of the bequest and charter which founded Dow Academy. In 1885, Moses Dow established the academy in the village of Franconia. As the years went by, Dow Academy grew and changed with the times. Several years ago the Trustees felt that it was time to take a long look at the educational pattern of our day and the needs of students, locally and throughout the country.

Acting on the advice of educational leaders and other consultants, the Trustees established Franconia College as the legal successor to Dow Academy

Before the college opened its doors, it acquired the former Forest Hills Hotel and property from the University of New Hampshire for $200,000. A similar sum was expended to completely winterize the former resort hotel and convert it into a college site with adequate classrooms, offices, and dining and sleeping facilities for students of both sexes.

High school students interested in knowing more about this college should write to the director of admissions, Franconia College, Franconia, N.H., for a copy of "Proceedings," a publication which describes in detail life at Franconia College.

HOME OF FRANCONIA COLLEGE, in Franconia, N. H., was the former Forest Hills Hotel, well-known summer resort, in the heart of the White Mountains. Formerly the property of the University of New Hampshire, it was purchased by the college to serve as the site of New Hampshire's newest two-year, coeducational liberal arts institution, which will begin its second year next month. "Rattle Of A Simple Man" Beautiful, Moving, Tender: HLP

Sex is everything — and sex is nothing! To bring these two unrealistic points of view into full understanding is the "Rattle of A Simple Man" which closes out the summer season at the Hampton Playhouse. Comedy and pathos are so closely related that it is often difficult to separate the two words — except semantically. The "Rattle of A Simple Man" mixes these emotions so delightfully that one can not fail to be amused and at the same time moved to compassion by the unfolding plot.

The very nature of the plot — a prostitute brings an uninitiated bachelor to her apartment in the due process of her profession — classifies the play as "adults only" but many young people could benefit from the tender philosophy which emerges with the development of the play. Super-saturation with sex and underexposure to sex can in the same breath create terribly lonely and unhappy people.

Katherine Helmond — who has charmed audiences all season with her skill and versatility as an actress — gives one of her most sensitive and sympathetic performances as the prostitute. She brilliantly reveals the character's unrealistic escape into an imaginary world and the bitter loneliness which it brings. Miss Helmond leaves the Hampton Playhouse regulars with a brilliant memory of her fine talent.

Fully as distinguished, is Louis Beachner, as the simple man. His portrait of the ingenious bachelor creates the naive little character, destitute of sympathetic and friendly companionship. His desperate desire for a fuller life is overwhelmed by his imprisonment with unshakeable fears and Louis Beachner charms the audience with his competence to measure the full dramatic potential of the role. He exploits every comedy situation to its fullest but with a touching pathos, that tenderly moves the audience.

In one short but fiery scene, James Whittle plays the brother of the prostitute. In his abortive effort to "rescue" his sister from a life of sin, Whittle dominates the volcanic action that brings "Rattle of A Simple Man" to its crucial turning point.

A very smooth and secure opening night performance resulted from the careful and understanding direction of Alfred Christie. His conception of "Rattle of A Simple Man" resulted in a truly exquisite and subtly provocative production of a play which demands a refined sensitivity to fully mature the deep qualities of the script.

Also, Steven Nihda — whose stage settings have had Broadway quality all season — has done an equally fine background for "Rattle of A Simple Man" that has all the right atmosphere so important to the plot of the play.

This is not a "sex comedy" that depends upon shocking situations and four letter words to make it a success. It is a beautifully tender story of two very, very lonely people — an introvert and an extrovert — who find their problems are not really so far apart and that life can be real and rewarding if there is mutual respect and understanding — a lesson all of us can learn. "Rattle of A Simple Man" is a delightful closing play. HLP

SENATOR THRUSTON MORTON of Kentucky attacked the economic policy of the Johnson administration in a short speech this week at Hampton Beach.

Sen. Morton Tours Area, Blasts Dems, Urges Unity

Senator Thruston Morton of Kentucky told gatherings at Rye and Hampton Beach this week that Republican unity was necessary and that the Johnson administration is trying to make people believe that "Republicans are a war party."

Speaking before a gathering of state and local GOP leaders, he said, "Right now we have a collection of individuals in our party and they refuse, as all Republicans have refused to fit any particular pattern."

The Senator explained that some of the greatest conformist groups in history are the Nazis and the Communists. What he said was necessary was "unity without conformity."

At the Hampton Beach Sea Shell, Sen. Morton explained that history does not show that the Republicans are a war party. He also took a stab at the Johnson administration and accused it of "sword rattling."

He also said that the war on poverty will "disappoint a lot of people." This administration is spending $2 million more a day than President Kennedy spent and $2 million more an hour than President Eisenhower spent when he was in the White House."

Sen. Morton was joined on his tour by Judge William Treat, William King, State Republican Chairman and former Congressman, Perkins Bass, the new national committeeman.

Mechanical 'Monster Of The Deep' Can Walk On Legs As Long As 30-Story Building Is High

This is a story about a three-legged mechanical giant and how fast it grows.

It walks on land, and today, can wade in water up to 250 feet deep on movable legs that are each as long as a 30-story building is high. But not many weeks ago—when it took its first trial steps on the east bank of the Mississippi, at Vicksburg, and waded slowly into the river—the legs were "only" as long as the height of 12-story buildings.

A movie producer might dream up such a creature if he were planning a science-fiction horror film called, perhaps, "The Monster That Devoured New Orleans." This mechanical giant headed directly for New Orleans after it waded into the Mississippi, but its trip through Louisiana and thereafter was entirely peaceful. Quite often, these days, the truth sounds almost as unbelievable as science fiction.

The 5,000-ton "monster" is, in fact, a giant offshore oil rig, now drilling wells on the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico for the Southeast Esso Region of Humble Oil & Refining Company, the nation's largest oil refiner and marketer. The 376-foot legs support a drilling platform that is a small industrial community, complete with air-conditioned crew quarters for 45 men, a power plant sufficient for a town of several thousand population, a helicopter deck, two large cranes, and restaurant, recreation and storage facilities. The platform can walk, on land or in the water, because each of its three jack-type legs is powered by electric motors and each operates independently, making it possible for them to move forward, backward, sideways, or up and down. Humble says the mechanical giant is the largest mobile rig in the world and can drill for oil in water up to 250 feet deep.

When completed at a Vicksburg plant near the banks of the Mississippi, the giant walked the short distance to the river and waded in. Escorted by two tugs, as many as it often takes to dock a supertanker, it floated another 475 miles to reach the spot in the Gulf of Mexico near Venice, La., about 25 miles from the mouth of the Mississippi where the drilling for Humble Oil started in water 176 feet deep. Because of bridges over the river, the mobile platform managed with legs that were only 146 feet long until it reached New Orleans. Otherwise, it could not have floated under the bridges.

At New Orleans, the derrick was erected on the rig and the legs were lengthened to 213 feet. The final sections were added to the 376-foot legs at a Myrtle Grove (Louisiana) construction yard. Steel tanks at the bottom of each leg serve as giant floats unless they take on water as ballast. The ballast is added whenever the rig plants its "feet" firmly on bottom and when it walks in the water.

Much work is involved in moving many offshore drilling platforms from one site to another, but this mobile rig can take a walk on the sea floor almost any time, in order to change locations and sink a new well for Humble.

At work in water 176 feet deep.

The Collins View

By DICK COLLINS

The last Beachcomber of the season. We have seen a lot of things take place here at Hampton Beach this Summer. The beach has a new Miss Hampton Beach who lives right on the beach all year round. Also chosen was a Miss New England who resides in Lowell, Mass. The weather here at the beach has not been the best for the many vacationers. It was rather "Cool" all summer long.

Business all in all has not been the greatest. The Seagate Ballroom this season has become very popular and from what we hear their second year in the dancing business has been very good and the management I'm sure will be making plans for the summer of '65', so we wish the men down at the Seagate the best of luck. A flashback at the Casino Ballroom; the best attended was the trio of Peter, Paul and Mary. It seems this group never loses its touch with their many fans. Jack Dineen's College Mixers picked up near the end of the season when he started to run "Shipwreck Dances" which allows the patrons to come as they are, and this proved to be the "Key" to attract the crowd. But there were a lot of it's and But's so we doubt if there will be any further Shipwreck Party's. But Jack Dineen will be bringing in the everpopular "Four Seasons" September 3 to his last College Mixer of the Season. It should be an excellent crowd on hand. don't forget it will be "jackets and ties gents. Turning to one of my favorite spots: the Hampton Plyhouse will be winding it up for the season with the "Rattle of a Simple Man." This season has been A1 as reported by John Vari and co-owner Alfred Christie they have presented some of the best plays on the Seacoast. Of course one knows you can't have a good play every week. But all in all I believe these two guys have tried their best and come next season you can be sure they will try even harder to bring the best in stock plays to the Hampton area.

Well I guess this puts the wraps on for another season. I hope you have enjoyed my humble offerings. At this point I would like to say thanks to Wayne Elliot who without his aid I would never have gone to press.

Wayne just resigned from his position as reporter for the Hampton Union, and during the summer months the Beachcomber. Wayne will be teaching this fall in his home town in North Hampton at the local Junior High. I wish him the best of luck. Also I wish to say a heartfelt thank you to Pete Ran-

Opening the CIA (Collins Intelligence Agency.) File for the last time this summer. To the Maintenance men at the Sea Shell, "All the way" to James F. Allen Jr. "Never in a Million Years" to Jack Kennedy at the Casino Arcade, "The Longest Walk" to James Gilday, at To Elaine Riley says "Now is a local drugstore says, "Somewhere along the Way," Bob Preston says to JJD, "You'll Never Get Rich", Dennis says, he hopes to be another Mr. Novak, to Laurie at Hale's Shoe-shop "You're Driving Me Crazy" and finally to Pat Fuller "Hi Can be Heard Singing the September Song."

Well that does it Guy's and Gal's, hope that you make it back to Happy Hampton next June and with any luck you might make it. Until then study hard and all that jazz and I leave you with a final thought: Remember it's nice to be important but more important to be nice! I'll be the same. Cool it and Swing... RLC

Toll Bridge To Become Free Soon

Highway Comm. John Rowe said this week that the Neil Underwood Memorial Bridge which crosses Hampton Harbor would become toll-free this fall.

Rowe said that August receipts have not yet been analyzed and a decision must await the final figures. He did say that he expected the final tolls might be paid on either Thursday or Friday before Columbus Day. On the last day, Rowe said a small ceremony would be held.

The original bridge was completed on May 10, 1902 by the Northeastern Mass. St. Railway Co. and the bridge was used for electric cars. In 1933, the state legislature bought the bridge from the company.

Construction began on the new and present bridge in 1947 and it was completed on Sept. 15, 1948 at a cost of $1.1 million.

High School Dropouts Still A Problem: Boynton

Every year ten to twenty local high school students leave school for reasons which usually concern the desire to get a job. At least this is the reason which they give school officials for leaving but Supt. of Schools Jason Boynton give a different reason.

"We feel that two important, and by no means the only, reason are the failure to learn to read and cars", Boynton said. "We have tried to ease the problem by adjusting the reading assigned to the students who have problems but this is not the only solution. Some students buy cars and must quit school to pay for them."

The dropout problem has been increasing in recent years and with the rapid growth of our population the problem is becoming a major factor in American life.

"We feel that there are two kinds of dropouts," Boynton continued, "those who leave school and those who remain. Many students are absent so

Maddie Meredith's Home For Actors

Thirty-Eight Mill road in Hampton is a large white house, three stories high, surrounded by trees and smaller shrubbery and approached by a slightly downhill sidewalk and a slightly uphill stoop. It looks like many of the other houses in Hampton, rambing but comfortable, clean and solid. But this house is a palace. It is loved by so many people that it would be impossible to count them and it has been home to as many.

For ten years Madeleine Meredith, known as Maddie, has opened the doors of this house, her home, to the company of the Hampton Playhouse and it is here that most of the actors who have worked with the Playhouse from season to season have found a temporary summer home. Since 1954 when Maddie first opened her doors to the actors, traditions have been begun and have continued and this is what makes Maddie's so nice a place to live in: the sense of being part of a chain, a family of people who have found the same happiness and done the same happy routines in years before.

Perhaps the most famous and popular thing about Maddie is her cooking. A normal supper hour sees Maddie serving a huge three course meal for twenty or more hungry actors who sit about the large center table and sing and laugh and talk together with their meal, discussing the show to come and last night's funny incidents. If there isn't turkey, there's chicken, or pork chops, or roast beef, or a special surprise, cooked for the special opening nights. Always there are more vegetables and side dishes then can possibly be eaten, and for dessert, cookies, puddings, cakes, jellies, ice creams and on and on. After the evening's performance, as the hungry actors return in two's and three's, a huge fire is lit in the fireplace and sandwiches and milk and coffee are had by all, usually to the accompaniment of the latest and best recording albums, played on the beautiful Stereo phonograph set up for listening in the large center living room. No one ever goes home thinner than they came at Maddie's and most gain as much as ten pounds in a 3-month period.

Living arrangements at 38 Mill road are also wrapped in tradition. The female residents live together in a large upstairs garret, called affectionately, "the barn." It's high wooden ceilings and its oak beam floor give it a wonderful woody and summertime flavor and it is large enough to accommodate eight girls with a living room and storage room as well. It is a popular place for dancing and chatting until curfew time which is 1 a.m.

The men in the company sleep on the third floor on the other side of the building. Sleeping two in a room in five comfortable and pleasant units, they enjoy a 2 a.m. curfew and spend the extra hour learning lines or more playfully, playing cards, listening to the radio, ironing white shirts and slacks and in performing a million and one other activities.

Perhaps the best known tradition at Maddie's is opening night parties. Following every Monday evening opening night, Maddie invites the entire company to her home for a party of hot dogs, dancing, beers and group hootenannies. The evening is long and does not often end before 3 a.m. but Tuesday is a well deserved day off and it is spent sleeping and relaxing at the shore, gaining strength for another hectic and busy work week to come.

Without Madeleine Meredith, the Hampton Playhouse would be a far less happier place in which to work and live, but she is there and she is one of the chief reasons for making a summer with the Playhouse however the hard work, a summer in paradise, enjoyed by all and never forgotten by any. Thirty-Eight Mill Road stands as a symbol of that happiness.

Beware of any drug or device which promises more than temporary relief for minor pains of arthritis.

Seacoast Map Designed By Mrs. Clark

Mrs. Dorothy Linscott Clark, of Hampton has designed a pictorial map entitled "New Hampshire's Famous Seacoast Region."

Around the border of the map are many historical items of information pertaining to the local area. Each of the seacoast towns is listed and some interesting feature from each of the towns is also mentioned.

Mrs. Clarke has been working on the map for several years. She has designed and had published other maps which have been distributed all over the world. These include a series of children's maps and estate maps.

Mrs. Clark has long been interested in illustrating. Her past efforts include map designing for a New York publisher.

She is a member of the North Hampton Bush 'N Bud Club, the New Hampshire League of Arts and Crafts and the Strawberry Banke Guild Inc.

THREE WERE ARRESTED FOLLOWING a brawl on F St. Sunday night. At the jail they destroyed a urinal and steel bed as shown in the picture. (See Story)

Several Injured In Accidents

Several persons were injured in motor vehicle accidents during the past week as logged at the Hampton Police Station. Police said Richard Boucher, 17, Chicopee, Mass., was taken to the Exeter Hospital in the Sturgis ambulance following an accident on Fuller Court. The police officers said Boucher had been riding on the hood of a car operated by Richard E. McManamy, Springfield, Mass., on August 20 when the mishap occurred. Officers John Woodburn and George Pierson investigated. At 3 p.m. on August 23, Frances Marie St. Clair, 230 Fulton Street, Medford, Mass., a pedestrian, was injured when involed in an accident with a car operated by Fred George Bruce, St. Petersburg, Florida. She was taken to Exeter Hospital in the Sturgis ambulance. Police said the vehicle was headed north on Route 1A and that the pedestrian was crossing from the sidewalk to the parking area at the time of the mishap. Lt. Leavitt and Officers Seavey & Jones investigated. Vehicles operated by Harold D. Simons, Hampton, and Grover C. Spangler, also of Hampton, were in collision on Ocean Boulevard at 7:23 p.m. on August 23. Police said the Simons car received damage to the left front and side as it was headed north. The Spangler car was headed from the parking area to the south bound lane on Ocean Boulevard and received damage to the right side. Officer George Pierson investigated. Several persons were shaken up with some being taken to the doctors following a three car collision at 10:00 a.m. on August 23. The mishap took place on Route 1 just north of Our Lady of the Miraculous Medal Church and was investigated by Officers Whitcomb and Eastman. Cars operated by Margaret F. Foley, Waltham, Mass., Mary M. McDonald, Hampton, and Arthur F. Ellis, Danvers, Mass., were involved in the mishap. Police said all three vehicles were headed north at the time of the accident. The Foley car received rear end damage; the McDonald car had front and rear damage; and the Ellis car received front end damage. Two cars were involved in a Lafayette Road accident on August 22 at 3:25 p.m. Cars operated by John W. Slawson, New Castle, N.H., and Nancy P. Moulton, Melrose, Mass., received damage in the mishap. The Slawson car was damaged about the left rear, rear bumper, left rear fender, right rear fender & left rear wheel. The left front and left side of the Moulton car were also damaged. Officers Pierson and Woodburn reported that cars operated by Russell A. Phelps, Greenfield, Mass., and James F. Walsh, Atlanta, Georgia, were damaged in an Ocean Boulevard accident at 6:15 p.m. on August 22. The left side of the Phelps car was damaged while the right front fender of the Walsh car was also damaged. Approximately one person in eight will enter a hospital in 1964.

Police Arrest Three In Wild Beach Brawl

Two Lowell, Mass. men and an unidentified juvenile were arraigned in Hampton District Court Monday on several charges stemming from a fight on F street at the beach on Sunday evening. Police Chief John Roden said several officers were sent to break up the fight at 8 p.m. and as they tried to put several of the fighters into the patrol wagon, John Simonian, 19, David Copley, 19, and the juvenile resisted and fought with the officers, who after some effort put the trio in the police vehicle.

While on the way to the station, on A street, Simonian escaped from the truck via a window which had been broken in the brawl, but he was taken quickly taken back into custody. The offenders, who uttered much abusive language to the officers, were placed in cells at the beach station. They then broke several of the steel beds from the walls and broke a porcelain urinal in the cell.

In a closed session, Judge John Perkins met with police, probation officers and the parents of the juvenile. He was charged with drunkenness, brawling, using vile and abusive language to police officers and assaulting a police officer. He was sentenced to the N. H. State Industrial School in Manchester for 30 days while officials studied his case prior to a final judgement by the court. The two men were charged with the above misdemeanors and in addition, Simonian was charged with escape from a police vehicle and Copley was charged with destruction of town property. The last two offenses are felonies and are subject to prison terms of more than one year plus heavy fines.

Both men requested a continuance until they could retain lawyers and Judge Perkins scheduled their trials for Sept. 9 at 3 p.m. The men did not make a plea. At the request of Atty. H. Alfred Casassa, who was retained by the town, bail was set at $1250 each for the two men. Chief Roden said bail was not put up at the court session and the men spent at least one night at the house of correction.

A Man's Recipe

By Haydn S. Pearson

Cider Through A Straw

According to rumors circulating among the hills, certain countrymen store the liquid of pressed apples and in a few months have a drink that possesses a degree of potency. Men have argued around the stoves of general stores that this liquid is a definite help in haying and harvesting.

A few decades ago after the apples were picked and stored in big bins in the barn for sorting, farm boys knew they had the job of picking up the drops, putting them in burlap bags and carrying the apples to the old cider mill at the foot of the hill. Father was fussy about the apples that went into cider, which eventually changed into vinegar. "You need a combination of Baldwins, Snow Apples, Rhode Island Greenings and Northern Spies," he said. "It's the blend that makes the best fresh cider and the best vinegar."

The old miller dumped the apples into the hopper, pulled the lever and started the wheel. When the apples were ground, he spread layers of the juicy mass on burlap and put a frame between each layer. Then he began tightening the upside down jack with a long pole. Golden brown juice began to trickle down; bubbles appeared on the sides of the layered mass. Then a steady stream began to drip into the half hog-head on the floor. A lad took a long oat straw, knelt by the tub, and slowly, appreciatively began to fill up on the tangy sweet juice of the apples. Cider through a straw may not fulfill all etiquette requirements, but it was an efficient and satisfying way to enjoy a delicious fruit juice.

Grammie's Graham Muffins

Most women learn early that just because a man is not an authority on a subject, he has no inhibitions about offering advice. I was brought up with sisters and I couldn't possibly give them as much advice as they have given me over the years.

Blanch has just bought two dresses. Bought two on the same shopping expedition. I tell her, as I told the neighbor girls, that they ought to ask their men before they buy. This business of fashion has me confused. Why do you, citizens of a free country let some one tell you the length of your dresses? Furthermore, instead of being stylish, get something sweet and simple. Something with a little colored bow at the neck and a nice sash around her waist.

Let's get back to fundamentals, such as Grammie's Graham Muffins. Use one third cup of sugar, two cups of graham flour, one half teaspoon salt, four and a half teaspoons of baking powder, one fourth teaspoon allspice, one third cup shortening, one egg beaten, one cup creamy milk.

Put sugar in bowl. Put in (don't sift) the flour, salt, baking powder and allspice. Mix all well. Cut in shortening until mixture is crumbly.

Mix in egg and milk. Stir until batter is moist but do not beat. Fill greased muffin tins two thirds full. Bake at 400 about 25 minutes, or until done. These are equally good when reheated the next day and I like them with strawberry jam izer of the Muster said he was very satisfied with the results of the affair and he said that many units expressed a desire to return next year for the beginning of an annual event. Tarlton also said that he had seen the "Winnacunnet No 1" in action when he was a boy and was very pleased with the way it performed Saturday. He said that tub was in competition for the first time in 12 years.

Tarlton said that this muster was responsible for three tubs joining the Muster league and for the reactivation of three other units.

In the parade, the "Union No 1" of Southboro, Mass., was selected as the best marching unit and the best musical unit was the Oke's of Marblehead. "Spouter" of Mystic, Conn. a late entry, came the farthest distant to compete. All the New England states but Vermont had entries. Outside of New Eng-

THE BEST OVERALL FLOAT OF THE PARADE, the "Hale Shoe Store" float passes in front of the Sea Shell. The parade Saturday was a combination of the Firemen's Muster Parade and the annual beach parade.
