

WALTON ACADEMY

GRADUATING
CLASS OF '38

INTRODUCTION

To you of the Class of 1938 this number of our school paper is dedicated. At the request of the editors I write this foreword.

We look back over a year of work that has given us a measure of success. To some a feeling of satisfaction for a task well done, to others a relief that it's over. It is trite to say that you go out into a world filled with confusion and uncertainty. It is easy to find things wrong with the world about you. But the more important problem is: What shall I do with myself now that my school days are over? That I can not tell you, but I can offer a few suggestions.

First and foremost, do not expect too much, and do not lose confidence in yourself because you cannot get a job immediately. Do the best you can each day. Do all you can to improve yourself.

Second as you cast about for a vocation into which you can fit, think more about your own growth and happiness than of the money you can make. In other words plan for the future rather than for immediate gains.

Your teachers—and I with them—who have followed your development through these school years are confident of your ultimate success. Opportunity lies before you, if you have the ability, the ambition and the energy to make it yours. Need I tell you that you have our heartiest wishes for your success. Go forth, Class of 1938, and prove that our confidence is justified.

Mr. Russell's love for hunting is known throughout the land,
And he often takes his son along to lend a helping hand.
We are very sure he takes this means of forgetting old H. A.,
And you certainly cannot blame him for "Each doggie has his day."

Mrs. Brown's ambition is to travel far and wide,
To see the seven wonders and to view the country-side.
This year she took a trip to the lovely Coral Isles,
We wish her lots of happiness as she travels o'er the miles

Miss Janvrin is an example of personality plus charm,
And even in a crisis we bet she would be calm.
We all just love to watch her as she moves gracefully about,
And that she is a lady there's certainly no doubt.

Mr. Sulloway's knack for music has been proven by his viol,
We think he should join Goodman--he sure has got the style.
Although the school would miss him, we wouldn't interfere
If he sought the bumpy road to fame, the one he holds most dear.

Miss Fowler's photographic skill has herein been displayed
And with her guidance, skill, and help, this yearbook we have made.
To keep and cherish through the years, to keep fond memories clear
And to recall, as time goes by, the friends that we have made here.

Graduation Wish

And once again life opens wide the door
Through which shall pass ambition, youth and hope,
Into that harsher world, but little tried,
Where eager faith its tasks would meet and cope,
The tasks that stagger oft when youth seems far
From that fond hope that fastened to the star.

How fine a thing it is--this hope of youth,
Which bears the faithful heart that gives it room
Above all trivial things of time and place
On pinions to a sure success--not doom;
That sees no failures in the coming years
Whose eager feet press on--they know no fears.

The June time brings these fruitful days of life,
Repeating for each one the promise o'er,
Of rich fulfillment--harvests in the years,
The fields of time, in which our visions soar;
With roses to bloom and thorns but few,
May every worthy dream of youth come true.

And may no idle dreams usurp the mind,
No selfish visions stretch adown the years,
No loitering by waysides, seeming joy
To end in grief and penitential tears;
But on life's journey all along the way
Look Heavenward and for its guidance pray.

Priscilla Alden
(Prilly)

Priscilla has the meekest voice
So quiet and so small.
We all just have to strain our ears
To hear anything at all.

As Others See Us

Crunch, crunch, munch, munch! What is that noise we hear? Why, of course it's Prilly chewing on her pencil. You see she just can't wait to clamp her teeth into one of her delicious cheese sandwiches. Poor Priscilla, trying to concentrate on one of Sullivan's lectures. Wouldn't you think he would be more considerate of appetites and shorten the old lectures!

of shoulders."

Charlotte Bachelder
(Swing)

Charlotte's tall and stately
And full of rhythm too,
And when she hears a swing band,
She knows just what to do.

As Others See Us

Someone had to keep the rhythm in the school, so Charlotte did it for us. Never a dull moment at noontime when she was around! Even when the radio was on the "blink" her "hei-de-hoe's" were so contagious that the whole student body soon followed her example and the old schoolhouse rang with "da-da-da" and "hei-de-hoe."

We expect to see her taking Martha Raye's place one of these "swinging" days.

Activities

Athletics: Softball

the mind the dust of everyday life."

Charles Baisley
(Buss)

Charlie is rather quiet
And never in anyone's way
He could accomplish a lot if he tried
But he believes that work doesn't pay.

As Others See Us

We refer you to Buster if you want to know how to waste time profitably. We always thought him to be a quiet and unassuming fellow but it seems that he has taken dancing lessons all winter. Now there is nothing he likes better than dancing. We believe that he is now going to take in all the dances in town and also out of town. Usually dancing takes two--we wonder if that has anything to do with the sudden interest in that direction. Or had we better believe that it is "King Rhythm" that has him in his clutches. One of his accomplishments that he kept secret until the last moment is his ability to draw. It is to him that we owe the cover design for this booklet.

(Transfer student from Portsmouth High)

"Better Late than Never"

Gertrude Blatchford
(Gert)

Gertrude's alert and very clever
And does her work with high endeavor
Though her quietness, her mind conceals
You should see what her report card reveals!

As Others See Us

Now we know that Gert took the Home Economics Course to better equip herself to become a farmer's wife! Practice in the culinary arts, dress-making, and training for family life have given her a good start. Gertrude's personality will also add much to her happiness, for, although, she is believed by most people to be shy, we know that she is full of pep when given the right opportunity. We wish you the best of luck!

Activities

John Bognett
(Johnnie)

John always looks so neat
And always he's well dressed.
But he's never too clean to play baseball
Even if he wears his very best.

As Others See Us

Johnnie took his acting so seriously that he carried it on into his Academy years. When things were missing you could always depend on Johnnie for information as to their whereabouts. We believe that this irresistible impulse was acquired while taking part in the ninth grade play. We hope that he will forget his insane idea of being a kleptomaniac before many years have passed.

Winthrop Brown
(Winnie)

Winthrop met up with poison ivy
Or it met up with him--
Well, anyhow, they got together
And he's covered from limb to limb.

As Others See Us

Winnie is one of Mr. Russell's star physicists and chemists. We wonder if that has anything to do with the way he drives a car. It certainly can't be any ordinary scientific fact like gravity that keeps him on the road and his passengers in the car as he whizzes around corners on one wheel, so it must be some special mixture of scientific facts picked up by him in these courses and kept a deep dark secret from the rest of us mortals. Our only hope is that Winnie never forgets the formula.

Winnie's thoughts in bookkeeping: Since you have been scolding me, I have counted 120 books in this room.

Charles Burditt
(Birdie)

Charles and his little Ford
Are going here and there
And if he should be late for school
We bet he wouldn't care.

As Others See Us

Charles left the athletics for the other men of old Hampton Academy. Instead of participating in athletics he used his vocal cords for four years in the glee club and chorus. For the last three years he has been giving special instructions in "double clutching" or the art of "truck driving." These instructions were all right until one day he removed Mr. Sulloway's number plate and after this accident he drove with more care. We haven't seen him drive a truck, but we suppose he could handle a half ton one after he had taken a few lessons from the very able truck driver, Mr. Parr.

Natalie Burnham
(Nat)

Nat is the best dancer in our class
And she is an up and coming lass.
Don't ever call her on Saturday night
You won't find her in, try hard as you might.

As Others See Us

Natalie certainly is a "clever gal". Although it is hard to believe, she goes to every dance and still keeps up her studies. Imagine being Valedictorian and still having time to "play." What is the secret inspiration, Nat?

It seems that we have a movie fan in our midst, and its none other than Marion Decota. The man in discussion is that popular baritone, Nelson Eddy.
It looks as though she would have lots of competition but we certainly wish her luck in landing him.

"Its a good file that cuts iron

Gertrude Durant
(Gerty)

Gert Durant's boy friend's going to wear a sign
"Hands off" is how it will read.
So don't cut in--you fivilous gals.
Or hospital care you'll need!

As Others See Us

It seems that teachers in the lower grades are always and forever asking their little pupils to stay after school to wash the boards and "beat" the erasers; and none would volunteer more regularly than Gerty.
Just because she lived near the school was not the only reason for her willingness. Throughout her whole school life she has been one of the most industrious and cheerful workers in the class.

"Ever Willing"

Amy May Fogg
(Amy)

Amy Fogg is lucky
To have such natural curly hair,
We girls all envy her.
We have to give ours such care.

As Others See Us

Amy is one of our very quietest girls. She came to Hampton Academy from Brewer, Maine, where she was State Champion in the 4-H Club for the year 1934. She excels in cooking and housekeeping so here's your chance boys! We feel that she earned her award for she has been a faithful member of the club for ten years.

We predict a successful life for Amy because of her industriousness and faithfulness. Even Hampton Academy teachers cannot find excuses to keep her after school, and that is quite a find.

But you'll have to move fast to get out of Virginia's way.

And here is Virginia,--of course, you remember her! She was the artist (?) of the class, drawing its members (and the faculty). We used to wonder why she did it, but now we know it was just to get in practice for passing time while on duty as a nurse. Good luck, Virginia!

(Clara)

Marie is noted for her voice
It's oh, so rich and mellow.
Whoever gets that musical lass
Will be a lucky fellow.

As Others See Us.

It seems that Marie's pet hobby of late has been reading, for, no matter where she was supposed to be or what she was supposed to be doing, you could always find her in some secluded corner (or even in class) reading. Every day brought forth a different book, while we sat by and marvelled at her ability to get anything out of books so hastily perused.

Maurice Kierstead
(Mike)

Maurice, of late years, is quite a lad
But we girls don't stand a chance.
Why, Mike is so absorbed in thought (?)
He can't spare us a glance.

As Others See Us

Mike's school antics were great and varied in number. Every classmate remembers how, in the eighth grade, his fits scared the girls so they hardly dared to look at Mike. Whenever quietness prevailed, attention was sure to be drawn to the far corner where, slowly but surely, Mike's fits were coming on. First the face contortions, then violence, then his removal from the class --and finally peace reigned once more.

Minnie Kuntz
(Kuntzy)

Red hair means temper, so I've heard
But gee, that's awfully funny,
For Minnie's hair is very red
And her disposition's sunny.

As Others See Us

Minnie is known for her famous giggle, but several times her classmates have had the "giggle" on her. One of these happened in Chemistry class in the Junior year. Marion M. brought a glass tube of H_2SO_4 to Minnie to remove the stopper. She talked while removing it and slowly the acid dripped down the front of her dress. When she saw what had happened she shrieked and Mr. Russell tried to rub it off but it was too late--the dress was ruined. For the rest of the day, Minnie was an "angel" in a "holy" dress.

When Dotty speaks of Morris (Maurice)
We're as puzzled as can be.
There isn't room in her heart for two
So we'll just have to wait and see.

As Others See Us

Ordinarily our Dotty is a very clever girl, so we were all very much shocked when, on the Senior trip to Boston, Dot said that one thing she hoped to see was the Statue of Liberty. Her trip was almost spoiled when we told her it was in New York harbor. Never mind, we all make mistakes, Dot, so we'll forgive you this time.

My, my! Is that the same Roger Mace that used to be? It certainly is, but hasn't he changed! Why! He used to be the most bashful boy you ever saw. He still blushes, which we consider an asset, for we agree with the person who said, "No man can be a total brute if he can still blush." We're rooting for you, Roger, and we hope you can overcome this obstacle as you have overcome all others.

Dorothy Mitchell
(Guga)

Dot Mitchell's love for all kinds of sports
Is known throughout the school
And makes the girls who don't "go out"
A point for ridicule.

As Others See Us

Dot Mitchell has been very active in school life. Being president of her class for two years and editor of the school paper are only a few of her activities. Her classmates remember when she was sent to the cotroom as a punishment, her dancing lessons were practiced or she caught up on her sleep.

Arnold Palmer
(Bud)

When Arnold plays upon his horn
They come from far and near
So if you've never heard him--
You've missed a lot, I fear.

As Others See Us

Arnold is ordinarily considered a very quiet fellow, but we remember that not so long ago he and Eddy went to visit a "pal" in the hotel at New London, and he invited them in to chat. The open window made a convenient ash tray until the noise of a fire siren brought them to the window in a hurry. Directly below them a beautiful new fruit store awning was becoming a thing of the past. Needless to say Bud and Eddy made a quick exit and the hotel proprietor is still wondering just how a thing like that could happen.

(Dick)

Richard with his little car
Is always on the go.
He never, never stays at home
We wonder why 'tis so.

As Others See Us

Poor Richard has been a boy of misfortune. We can remember three incidents when fate almost claimed him.

1. The first time he was run over by a load of gravel.
2. The second time he was wrecked at sea.
3. The third time he fell out of a truck.

Lady Luck must consider him her special protege because he was not seriously hurt in any of these unfortunate incidents.

Robert Parr
(Bob)

Robert Parr, we understand
Is musically inclined.
And did you not, or did you, hear
That with Goodman's band he'd signed?

As Others See Us

When we hear a loud noise or a hard husky voice we know it must be coming from Robert Parr or his bass horn. In arguing he reigns supreme, especially in debates. From his associates at the Penny Arcade, he has assumed a vocabulary that is most impressive and understood by very few. In football he exceeds the average by his bold, brave and rugged character which he has retained after four years of hard usage.

Beverly Pierce
(Bev)

Miss Beverly Pierce, why of course you know

She's the one that liked school so.
Right at her "post" she'd always be
And never her vacant chair you'd see!

As Others See Us

Here is a girl that has been to some of the nicest schools there are: Mirror Lake Junior High School, Newton High School and Robinson Seminary. From these schools she has developed a personality that many of us envy for she has beauty and poise, and at the same time, has retained her modest and natural disposition. She is musically inclined and those who have not heard her singing have something to look forward to. You will no doubt, see Bev at the movies any night you go, for she tells us that is her hobby. She enjoys the thrilling, exciting ones, with a tinge of romance. Here's a tip to some boys who also find movies enjoyable

"Fine feathers make fine birds."

William Pierce
(Chink)

Billy is a little boy
Who far above us towers.
He fills our class with fun and joy
To help pass away the hours.

As Others See Us

Presenting the "Class Cut-Up!"
No pupil will forget Billy's trick on the last day of school in the ninth grade. He was trying to get up courage to light a cherry bomb while talking to Charlie B. Charlie thought he'd help him out and lit it for him. Billy grabbed it and threw it out the window.
Before it reached the ground a loud noise was heard throughout the school.
Billy was nearly "sent down" on the last day of school, believe it or not.

Richard Rice
(Riccy)

Richard a horticulturist wishes to be
And the fruit of his labor we're anxious to see.
But don't for a second ever presume
Those flowers of his on time will bloom.

As Others See Us

Richard is one of those fortunate people who have successfully used the motto, "Never do today what you can put off 'til tomorrow." He is planning to carry on a business career when he leaves the Academy and we wish him success in this work. We are sure that the practice in speaking French with Maurice Y. will come in handy in his future years.

Patricia Russell
(Pat)

Pat Russell we find cannot always agree
Especially with one of the faculty,
But to her own opinion she has a right
And at the time of this writing there has been no fight.

As Others See Us

Although Pat came to us only this fall, she has made friends of every member of the school. Her facial expressions--especially when at bat--are worthy of a cartoonist's best endeavor. To her also belong a great many queer noises which pop out in the most unusual places. We predict a stage career for Pat.

Elizabeth Scott
(Betty)

Betty Scott is very pretty
And is always writing a cheerful "ditty"
We hear she seeks a domestic career
So we wish her success, year after year.

As Others See Us

Not so very many years ago, Betty wore a red skirt--and such a beautiful red skirt that was! Even the boys appreciated its bright color. One, M.K., was so fond of it, in fact, that he almost succeeded in getting it for himself. Betty let out a yell, the class roared, and Maurice stayed after school. Betty was more careful of the plackets after that.

She just can't stay in one place long.
It's the gypsy in her soul.

As Others See Us

Snearsey is one of those lucky seniors who have traveled extensively. She has been in every state in the union except three. Because of this extensive traveling, Dorothy is one of our best story tellers and she relates many interesting experiences for our benefit. Although she has changed schools much during the course of her life, it has not held her back, which just proves the old adage--"You can't keep a good man down."

Here's wishing her luck--her boy friend too,
Let's hope her skies will ever be blue.

As Others See Us

"Let's go down to Amesbury" is what our senior classmate, Helen, says. There is a special attraction down there for her --but we won't give her secret away.

She has not taken part in school athletics very much--not because she didn't want to but it was always such a long walk home after them. She has nothing definite planned for the future but we have our own ideas and they're closely allied with her "special attraction."

Ladies, ladies, ladies, if ever you are sick
I know just the very thing, to help you get well quick.
The doctor's name is Eddie, and when he plays his flute
All your ills and aches and pains will choose another route.

As Others See Us

Can it be that our Eddie would stoop to such underhanded methods as stealing another's work, or has Dot fallen into evil ways and become an accessory after the fact. When other members of the class failed to do an assignment Eddie was "prepared to the teeth." The girl in front of him had prepared an excellent one which Eddie presented with his usual forceful speech.

And drives a car well too.
So if you'd like to learn them both
This is a tip for you!

As Others See Us

Woof! Woof!
Bea Wells is another one of our little dark-eyed girls from the beach, who prefers dancing to eating. She tells us she helps carry on the real estate at the beach, especially in the spring when there is so much house cleaning and hard work to be done. As Others See Us

Bea Young is one of our hard working Academy girls who came into our class in the seventh grade, and although she has been very quiet, we have always known that she was there.
There must be a special attraction uptown, because, rain or shine, she leaves us every noontime. We are
